The first meeting for the formation of a society whose purpose was the education of Jewish youth in the city of Philadelphia was held on March 7, 1847 ; on June 4, 1848, a Constitution and By-Laws were adopted, and on July 16th the first regular meeting of the Society took place.

At the annual meeting of the Society, held March 13, 1898, it was decided to commemorate the close of the first half-century of the existence of the Society by the publication of a memorial volume.

A brief but comprehensive history of the inception and growth of the Society is accordingly presented in the following pages, compiled almost exclusively from its official records.

In this review of a half century of active communal effort, the life work of Isaac Leeser stands out as a landmark in the history of the Jewish educational movement which is so marked a feature of our present time. It was Isaac Leeser who brought the Hebrew Education Society into existence, and it has been the spirit with which he imbued the organization that has enabled it to overcome the obstacles which for a decade after his death beset its way. To him, furthermore, was due the early effort towards a higher education which took form in the Maimonides College, and, in order to make the record of that worthy undertaking more accessible to students of this subject, its plan, as embodied by its rules and regulations, has been printed in full.

Since 1851, when the first Hebrew School of the Society was established on Zane street, the development of its work has steadily proceeded, increasing in breadth and scope with the growing needs of the Jewish community of Philadelphia. The Hebrew school originally instituted has been continued, with various changes of location, in the central district of the city, and two others have been established and maintained at outlying locations. To these have been added a number of English night schools, and industrial schools.

The policy pursued by the management during the last twenty years was not changed from former methods because of a desire to have something new, but for the reason that the public had evinced a positive disinclination to continue the support of the school as it was then conducted.

In the pursuance of its general objects, the present policy of the Society, as definitely laid down in its official declarations, may here be quoted as follows:

“To keep the expenditures within the income.”

“To allow the use of any available portion of the Society’s buildings for charitable or educational purposes generally, free of charge.”

“Teachers to speak English without a foreign accent; preference to be given those studying for a profession or pursuing courses at a university for a general education.”

“English teachers to be High School graduates.”

The men and women of Philadelphia who have contributed their means to the Society, may feel content with the thought that it has been applied to the highest of philanthropic work—the instruction and uplifting of the children of their people.

The future holds greater possibilities than the past afforded. The community is awakening, still too slowly, to the import of these possibilities, and to the fact that the most far-reaching philanthropy consists in intellectual and moral education which renders the recipient self-reliant and self-sustaining.

Let us hope that a kind Providence, which has implanted in the hearts of the Members, Friends and Managers of the Hebrew Education Society the desire to maintain its good work, and which has watched over and supported them during the last half century, will guide and direct them in the future, and instil in the hearts of their descendants and successors that love for Judaism, its culture and its history, which can alone perpetuate our religion and deliver it in its purity to our posterity.

HISTORICAL REVIEW.

The Hebrew Education Society

FIFTY YEARS' WORK.

The foundation of an institution for the education of the Jewish youth was early agitated in Philadelphia. At the beginning of the second quarter of the present century German Jews were coming to this city in great numbers, and they proceeded at once to establish a synagogue and charitable societies. The native-born Jewish population was rapidly becoming greater and it was recognized generally that something had to be done in order to educate fittingly the younger generation in the precepts of their fathers, and in a manner that would best equip them to cope with the exigencies of American life.

There were, it is true, Hebrew teachers in the city, but they were not adequate to the needs of the community. The compensation paid to these private tutors was very small, and it did not encourage many of them to pursue their labors. Good text-books were few and these were strongly tinctured with Christian theology. The idea of a college, in which children born of Jewish parents could be instructed in English and in the classics, in the liberal arts and in the Hebrew language and literature, had long been in a nascent condition, and it was soon felt by the members of the Jewish community in Philadelphia that such a college was an urgent and ever-increasing necessity.

Already prior to 1840, Mordecai M. Noah, the famous traveler, consul-general, play-wright, journalist and politician, turned his attention to a plan for the formation of a Hebrew College in the United States. Later, he wrote, under date of August 18, 1843, an open letter on this subject to the Rev. Isaac Leiser, which was published in the September number of the first volume of The Occident. There Major Noah sketched in brief outline his plan for the formation of a Hebrew seminary, "where children of the Jewish faith can obtain a classical education and at the same time be properly instructed in the Hebrew language, where they can live in conformity to our laws and acquire a liberal knowledge of the principles of their religion."

Isaac Leiser, in a prefatory note to Major Noah's letter, warmly commended the plan and invited every one interested in the cause of education to co-operate with him and to give "the subject the serious reflection which it deserves." No one recognized the need of such an institution more than Isaac Leiser. His magazine, The Occident, became the organ of the new movement, and he advocated it whenever a happy occasion offered itself. Isaac Leiser contributed more than any other man to the establishment of the Hebrew Education Society of Philadelphia.

A year after the appearance in print of Noah's letter, the Rev. I. Felsenheld communicated to The Occident, (Vol. II., p. 249) a plan which, in the opinion of its author, would speedily effect a solution of the problem. He proposed to teach in the school Hebrew grammar, Catechism, Latin, Greek, English grammar, mathematics, geography, history, German and French. He further proposed that he himself should conduct it and give instruction in most of the branches in his curriculum. As soon as twenty pupils would be procured he would open the school at the "earliest possible day." This plan never matured, and the Rev. Isaac Leeser continued to moot the subject through the columns of The Occident, although little success had as yet attended his efforts.

Towards the close of 1846 interest in the project revived and steps were taken to secure enough money to carry the plan to a successful issue. On January 27, 1847, a ball was given in the old Chinese Museum, under the management of Michael H. De Young, Solomon Gans, Moses Nathans, Isaac Nathans, Solomon Isaacs, R. Benjamin, H. Pineus, Simon M. Klasser, Lazarus Schloss, Michael Moyer, David Van Biel and Herman Weiler. It was known as the Hebrew School Fund Ball, and it was given for the especial purpose of raising funds for the "establishment of a Hebrew School in this city." The receipts netted over three hundred dollars, and this money went into a depository known as the Hebrew School Fund.

About a month after the ball, a public call was issued in the newspapers to all Israelites, to meet and receive the report of the Trustees of the Hebrew School Fund Ball, and to adopt such measures "as will further the ends of this laudable object." On March 7, 1847, in pursuance of this call, twenty-five gentlemen met and proceeded to consider the disposition of the money. The Rev. Isaac Leeser called the meeting to order. Zadoc A. Davis was elected chairman and S. M. Klasser secretary. M. H. De Young, the chairman of the Fund, reported that the net proceeds of the ball amounted to $312, of which $300 was deposited with the Pennsylvania Life Annuity Company, in the names of M.

H. De Young, Moses Nathans and Joseph Levi, as trustees of the Hebrew School Fund Ball. On motion of Abraham Hart it was carried unanimously, that the name of Simon Elfelt be added to the Trustees. On motion it was resolved that a committee of seven be appointed with power to collect donations and yearly subscriptions to further the object of the "establishment of a Hebrew and English school." It was further resolved that as soon as $2,000 will have accumulated, a general meeting shall be held in which the most advantageous disposal of the money would be duly considered. A subscription list was opened at the close of the meeting, and a number of the gentlemen present subscribed their names to various sums amounting to nearly $450.

On March 19, 1848, a general meeting of the subscribers to the Fund was held in the vestry room of the Synagogue Mickvé Israel, then on Cherry Street. Abraham Hart was elected Treasurer. It was stated that a second ball in aid of the Fund had been given, and it was as brilliant a success as the first one. As a result $427.15 had been invested in the names of the Trustees. Simon Elfelt having declined to serve as a member of the Board of Trustees, and as the meeting had resolved upon two additional members, Julius Stern and I. H. Blum were duly appointed. It is interesting to note that as the funds were deposited with the Pennsylvania Company, Hyman Gratz, the president, was notified of the appointment of the additional members.

At the next meeting, the Rev. Isaac Leeser, after dwelling upon the necessity and the benefits of a Hebrew education for Jewish children, called up a resolution which was unanimously adopted. It provided "that a committee of three persons (afterwards increased to seven) be appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws for the formation of a Hebrew Education Society." Agreeable to this resolution the chair appointed as the committee, the Rev. Isaac Leeser, Hyman Pollock, L. Bomeisler, Julius Stern, Abraham S.

Wolf, Joseph M. Asch and Simon Elfelt. A committee was also appointed to prepare printed circulars and distribute them to all Jewish families.

On June 4, the Constitution and By-Laws having been unanimously adopted, the chair was authorized to call a meeting for the organization of the Society and the election of officers.

On July 16, 1848, the Hebrew Education Society was formally organized. Zadoc A. Davis, who had acted as chairman of all the previous meetings, was unable to be present owing to absence from the city, and Solomon Solis served in his stead.

Following is a copy of the Constitution and By-Laws adopted on June 4, and which was formally signed by the members on July 16, 1848 :

PREAMBLE.

PENETRATED with the conviction of the necessity of a thorough religious education of all Israelites, and in view of the absence of proper schools where the same can be imparted; we the subscribers have associated ourselves for the purpose of raising funds, and to effect therewith the establishment of such schools, as will enable all Israelites of this city and county, to receive instruction in religion, the Hebrew and the English languages, the usual branches of education, and all such other subjects as the circumstances of the funds and the capacity of the scholars may enable the directors to afford.

CONSTITUTION.

ARTICLE I.

SECT. 1. The name of the Society shall be "THE HEBREW EDUCATION SOCIETY OF PHILADELPHIA." חברת חנוך נערים

ARTICLE II.

SECT. 1. Every member shall pay three dollars per annum, in such manner as may be fixed by the by-laws.

SECT. 2. Any male Israelite of twenty-one years of age, may apply to any meeting of the Board to be elected a member, and if he receives a majority of the votes of the Board present at the next stated meeting of the Board, he shall be a member of this Society. It is, however, provided, that the Board may postpone the election of any applicant to a future meeting if they deem it proper.

SECT. 3. No member one year in arrears shall be allowed to vote or hold office, unless previously liberated from his dues by the Board of Officers.

SECT. 4. Every member after his election, shall sign the Constitution before he shall be entitled to vote.

ARTICLE III.

SECT. 1. The officers of this Society shall be one President, one Vice-President, one Treasurer, one Secretary, one Assistant Secretary, and twelve Directors, who shall constitute the Board of Managers, and hold their respective offices for one year, or till their successors shall have been chosen, in case no election shall be held at the regular day for elections.

SECT. 2. The annual election shall hereafter be held on the Sunday before Shebuoth.

SECT. 3. The Board shall meet four times every year, or oftener if required by the President, or three members of the Board; the first meeting every year shall be held three weeks after the annual election, and quarterly thereafter; and at the first meeting of the Board, they shall elect the School Directors, to serve for one year.

SECT. 4. There shall be elected by and from the Board of Managers, five School Directors, who shall meet monthly, and have the superintendence of the school or schools to be established, and report their proceedings to the quarterly meeting of the Board of Managers.

SECT. 5. All vacancies are to be filled by the Board of Managers.

ARTICLE IV.

SECT. 1. The President shall preside at all meetings of the Society and Board, and in his absence the Vice-President; and in the absence of both, the meeting shall appoint a chairman.

SECT. 2. After the accounts shall have been passed by the Board, the President shall draw his warrant on the Treasurer, from a printed order-book (with a cheque margin), without which no money shall be drawn from the treasury. Provided always, that he may draw for any account not exceeding ten dollars, without first laying the same before the Board.

SECT. 3. In his absence, or sickness, the Vice-President (or other presiding officer), shall have the same power.

SECT. 4. He shall have power to convene meetings of the Society, Board of Managers, and School Directors, whenever he may deem it necessary.

SECT. 5. Whenever ten members address a written application to the President, stating the object of the call, he shall forthwith convene a general meeting for not later than ten days after the requisition has been presented to him.

ARTICLE V.

SECT. 1. The Treasurer shall take charge of all the moneys and securities of the Society, and he shall credit every member, donor, or contributor, with his or her contribution.

SECT. 2. He shall pay all orders duly signed by the President or other presiding officer.

SECT. 3. He shall keep a regular account of all sums received and paid by him, and furnish a statement of the funds in his hands at every meeting of the Board, and a general statement to the yearly meeting of the Society.

SECT. 4. He shall give such security for the faithful performance of his duties, as shall be approved of by the Board of Managers.

SECT. 5. He shall deliver all moneys, papers, and accounts, and all other property of whatsoever kind, belonging to this Society, to his successor in office, within two weeks after the election of said successor, on being duly notified by the President, or other presiding officer.

ARTICLE VI.

SECT. 1. The Secretary shall attend all general and Board meetings, and shall keep fair and correct minutes of all transactions of said meetings.

SECT. 2. He shall make out all bills, and hand them over to the Treasurer for collection.

SECT. 3. The Assistant Secretary shall make out all notices for meetings, and attend the meetings of the School Directors, keep the minutes of their transactions, and perform all the duties of the Secretary in his absence.

ARTICLE VII.

THE SCHOOL.

SECT. 1. As soon as the funds in hand, and the subscription of the members will warrant the undertaking, a school or schools, for both males and females, shall be established, in which are to be taught in the first instance Hebrew, according to both the German and Portuguese reading, Religion, and the elementary branches of an English education, the higher branches to be added as the scholars progress, and the funds will permit.

SECT. 2. The school shall be placed under the direction of the five School Directors, who shall receive all applications for admission into the school, and no scholar shall be admitted without a written order of said Directors.

SECT. 3. The Board of Managers shall have the power to fix annually the amount which each pay scholar shall have to pay for tuition.

SECT. 4. The School Directors shall admit all applicants (provided of good character) at the price affixed by the Board of Managers, if the application is signed by the parent or guardian, and states that the scholar is to be a pay scholar; and should the parent or guardian desire the scholars admitted as non-paying ones, they are to receive them as such.

SECT. 5. The Board of Managers shall have the power to elect the teachers after application of the candidates shall have been made to, and they have been recommended by the School Directors.

SECT. 6. The teachers' salaries shall be paid by the Board of Managers.

SECT. 7. The number of teachers shall be determined every year by the Board of Managers, according to the circumstances of the Society, and the wants of the scholars.

SECT. 8. The salaries of the teachers shall be paid quarterly, after having been passed on by the Board of Managers, and the orders being duly signed by the President or other presiding officer.

SECT. 9. The Chairman of the School Directors shall be ex-officio President of the school or schools to be established by this Society.

SECT. 10. The branches of education shall be determined from time to time by the Board of Managers.

SECT. 11. The School Directors shall have power to form a code of laws for the government of the school, to be submitted for approval to the Board of Managers.

SECT. 12. The choice of books, &c., and the giving of premiums, as also the formation of a school library, are to be left to the School Directors.

SECT. 13. The location of the school or schools to be established by this Society, is to be left to the Board of Managers.

ARTICLE VIII.

SECT. 1. The Society shall elect three Trustees, in whose names the stocks, funds, and property of the Society shall be vested, and whenever the Society shall be incorporated, they shall transfer all the said stocks, funds, and property belonging to the Society, to the corporation.

ARTICLE IX.

SECT. 1. All elections for officers shall be by written ballot.

ARTICLE X.

SECT. 1. This Constitution shall not be altered, repealed or amended, except the proposition shall have been made at one general meeting and passed on by the votes of two-thirds of the members present, at a subsequent general meeting, provided the amendment has been inserted in the notice of the meeting.

ARTICLE XI.

SECT. 1. This Society shall not be dissolved while there are five members, and when this shall be the case, the remaining members shall place the funds in some public securities, to be held by three trustees in trust, for purposes of education, as contemplated by this Constitution, and transferred to any other Society which may hereafter be formed on a similar plan, and for similar purposes, in the City and County of Philadelphia; the Trustees are to be empowered to pay over the annual interest for the education of Hebrew children for the purposes herein mentioned.

ARTICLE XII.

SECT. 1. The Society shall have power to pass all regulations and by-laws, not repugnant to this Constitution, the Jewish laws, and the Constitution and laws of the United States and the State of Pennsylvania.

ARTICLE XIII.

SECT. 1. Any officer or member may be expelled, or otherwise dealt with, by the Society, on an impeachment, provided such impeachment is signed by at least four members, and a copy of the same, with the notice of time and place of meeting, be furnished the accused, at least one week previously. Two-thirds of the members of the Society present at any such meeting shall determine the guilt or innocence of the accused ; provided, always, that the Board may suspend any member of the Board under the above regulations, subject to an appeal to the Society.

BY-LAWS.

SECT. 1. Half an hour after the time specified in the notices for calling the meeting, the President or other presiding officer, shall take the chair. The order of business shall be as follows :—

- I. The roll shall be called.
- II. The minutes of the preceding meeting shall be read and approved of, or amended if any error have been committed.
- III. Election of officers shall take place.
- IV. Communications to the Society shall be read.
- V. Reports of committees shall be read.
- VI. Business laid over from a former meeting shall be attended to.
- VII. New business shall then be introduced.

SECT. 2. No motion shall be received unless it is seconded ; and if requested by the chair, it is to be reduced to writing. Every motion is to be stated from the chair before debate shall be had thereon ; and until it shall be decided, no other shall be received, except to amend or postpone the original motion, or a motion to adjourn, which shall always be in order, and be decided without debate ; and no motion to reconsider shall be received unless the mover and seconder have voted with the majority. Questions of filling up blanks shall be taken first on the highest number ; and no member shall speak more than twice upon any question, unless permitted by the chair.

SECT. 3. The yeas and nays shall be taken, if required by four members of the Society or two of the Board, and entered on the minutes.

SECT. 4. The presiding officer shall appoint all committees, unless otherwise ordered by the Society, and may vote on the following subjects:—the revision of the constitution or by-laws, and expulsion of a member; but in no other case, except when the meeting is equally divided, when he shall have the casting vote.

SECT. 5. Thirteen members shall form a quorum of the Society, and four of the Board and three School Directors shall form a quorum for the transaction of all business.

SECT. 6. If the Treasurer is compelled to be absent from town for more than two weeks, he is to place the funds of the Society in the hands of the Vice-President, who is then to act as treasurer pro tem.

SECT. 7. The Board, if deemed requisite, may employ a suitable person to deliver the notices for the meetings of the Society or Board, and to act as collector, and allow him a compensation for his services.

SECT. 8. The following fines shall be enforced:—A member refusing to act as President, when elected, shall be fined $5.00; Vice-President, Secretary, or Treasurer, $3.00; a member of the Board, or School Director, $1.50. A member behaving disorderly at any meeting, not exceeding (at the option of the presiding officer), 50 dollars; provided always, that a person who has served two years, shall not be fined for refusing to hold office for a space of three years after the expiration of his second term; and provided an appeal may always be had to the Society.

SECT. 9. Any member not paying his annual subscription for two years, or refusing to pay his fines, may be expelled by the Board, unless excused by the Society.

SECT. 10. Every member at a meeting shall vote upon all questions, unless excused by the Society or Board, as the case may be.

SECT. 11. Collections are to be made quarterly.

SECT. 12. No alteration, amendment, or addition to these by-laws shall be made, unless proposed at one meeting of the Board or Society, and confirmed at the next meeting of the Society, by a vote of two-thirds of all the members present.

Newhouse, Moses Nathans, Jacob Langsdorf, H. Van Beil, Isaac Leaser, Lewis J. Cohen and Alfred T. Jones. Three trustees to take charge of the old Hebrew School Fund were Moses Nathans, Mayer Arnold and Joseph Schone-man. They were instructed by resolution to apply to the five trustees, the guardians of the money "collected for the purpose of promoting education among Israelites of Philadelphia," and to receive the funds which had been deposited by them with the Pennsylvania Company. At a subsequent meeting Moses A. Dropsie was elected secretary in place of Zadoc A. Davis, who had declined to serve, and Isidore Binswanger and Solomon N. Carvalho were added to the Board of Directors, owing to the resignation of Alfred T. Jones and to the election of Mr. Dropsie.

A curriculum and rules for the government of the school were drawn up by a committee, of which the Rev. Isaac Leeser was chairman. There were to be seven classes, and the syllabus of instruction reminds one as befitting a college more than a school. "English and Hebrew spelling and reading," were to be taught to the first class, while the more advanced pupils were to be instructed in "geometry, natural history, natural philosophy, Rabbinical literature, French, German, Latin, Greek, botany and chemistry.

An Act supplementary to an Act to incorporate the Hebrew Education Society of Philadelphia, approved April seventh, one thousand eight hundred and forty-nine (1849).

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, that the pupils of the school or schools of the Hebrew Education Society possessing the qualifications prescribed for the admission of pupils into the boys' and girls' high schools of the City of Philadelphia, shall be admitted to the said boys' and girls' high schools without any previous attendance in the public schools of the First School District.

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

(Signed) DAVID FLEMING,
Speaker of the Senate.

APPROVED—The eleventh day of April, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six (1866).

(Signed) A. G. CURTIN.

At the meeting May 13, 1866, the following vote of thanks was recorded :

“Resolved, that the thanks of the Society be given to James Freeborn, Esq., for his faithful services in procuring the supplement to the Act incorporating this Society.”

An event of unusual interest in the history of the Jews of Philadelphia, was the opening of the first school of the Society, on Monday, April 7, 1851. The hall of the old Phoenix Hose Company on Filbert (then Zane) street between Seventh and Eighth streets, had been selected by the Board of School Directors, and comfortable rooms were fitted up for the reception of the pupils. The Hebrew Sunday-School, the oldest Jewish Sunday-school in America, then occupied part of the same building. It had been in existence thirteen years. On Sunday, April 6, 1851, the Rev. Isaac Leiser delivered the opening address, in which he emphasized the importance of Hebrew education and the great good about to be accomplished.

"You never, we trust," he said, "will regret the exertions and outlay you have made in this cause:"—and we all know to-day that his words rang true.

The next day the school was opened, twenty-two pupils being present. Rich and poor freely mingled, and no one, except the Board of School Directors, knew who were pay

English branches. Seven weeks after the opening of the school the number of pupils had increased to seventy-one, and an additional corps of instructors was found to be necessary. Miss Anna Murray and Miss Clara Weil (who subsequently became the wife of the Rev. Dr. Sabato Morais), were elected assistant teachers. The school, under the skillful direction of its teacher and of the Board of School Directors, prospered from the start; the attendance increased, the donations became larger, a greater interest was manifested in its work. The Mickvé Israel Congregation appropriated two hundred dollars, and the members of the Congregation Rodef Shalom asked that a new school be started in a part of the city more accessible to German residents. In this connection it may be of interest to many of the friends of the Society to recall to their minds the names of those who were the first pupils of the school, and at the same time show that the neighborhoods where Jews formerly resided were, in a measure, again occupied by later arrivals.

On March 19, 1851, "the following names of scholars were given in:" Emanuel Goldstein, 8 Crown street; Julia Lieber, Race, between 9th and 10th; Cecelia Eger, 36 Wood street; Frances Eger, 36 Wood street; Hyman Newhouse, 35 Marshall street; Henry Clay Newhouse, 35 Marshall street. ing of the Society, held May 23, 1852, in pursuance of the subject, the following formal communication from the Congregation Rodef Shalom was received :

PHILADELPHIA, May 21, 1852.

Gentlemen :

“Being fully impressed with the necessity of educating our children in our own schools where they can obtain an English as well as Hebrew education and having learned with the liveliest interest the progress of the scholars at the late examination of the schools under your direction ; last Monday night at a general meeting of the Congregation Rodef Shalom we were appointed a committee to form some feasible plan to have a school or schools to be supported by the different Congregations in this City for the instruction of our children under your superintendence.

LIEUT. JONATHAN M. EMANUEL
Secretary, 1857—1863

“We beg leave to state that the Congregation which we have the honor to represent have a school where the children of the members of the Congregation receive a German and Hebrew education, but as the children attend the public schools and afterwards ours, so that they have no time for recreation, it would therefore be preferable if they could attend a school where the Hebrew and English are taught together.

MAYER FRANK
Board of Officers, 1870-1877

"Our school is supported from a tax on the seat-holders and costs us $950; this amount our Congregation would willingly contribute if the other Congregations would in like proportion pay for the support of the schools.

"Should you think favorably of a plan to form a school or more on a larger scale and appoint a committee, we will call with them on the different Congregations and solicit their co-operation and support."

Yours Respectfully,

Signed { JACOB LANGSDORF, { JACOB MAYER.

After a full discussion of the proposition thus formulated, the chair appointed

I. Binswanger, I. Leiser and M. A. Dropsie to confer with the Committee of the Congregation and report at the next meeting of the Board of Managers, which report is as follows:

"The undersigned committee, appointed to confer with the committee of the Congregation Rodef Shalom on the proposition submitted by them to the Hebrew Education Society and any other committee that may apply for the same purpose, beg leave to report, that they have had a conference with Messrs. J. Langsdorf, J. Mayer and Sol. Keyser of the above named committee (none other having made application) and after an exchange of views and opinions came to the conclusion that the only feasible plan would be for the said Congregation to raise either by taxation, subscriptions and voluntary contributions, or by whichever means they may see proper, the necessary amount to meet the expenses which this Society would incur in opening another school for 160 pupils like the one already established, and then to enter into an agreement with the Board of the Hebrew Education Society for admitting the children of all their members and seat-holders as full pay scholars, and under the established rules and regulations, by paying a certain amount per annum, and in order that the said Congregation may have its full share of the management of the schools, your committee suggested that all the members and seat-holders who are interested in the prosperity of the school might become members of the Society by paying $3.00 per annum (after being duly proposed and elected.)

“The probable expenses without reference to the furnishing of the school room were estimated by us at $1,800 per annum.

“Your committee learned with much pleasure that these propositions, as submitted to the Congregation Rodef Shalom by their committee, who made great exertions in their behalf, were warmly approved by the Congregation and the amount of $950 raised by them annually for educational purposes was at once appropriated, provided a sufficient amount can be raised to make up the difference of the sum necessary for the accomplishment of this project.

“A subscription list was started and the sum of $197 already subscribed, (the subscriptions to be paid quarterly and to be for three years.)

"If the Congregation Rodef Shalom can and do offer the sum of $1,600 per annum for the tuition of their children, not exceeding 160 in number, and for every child above that number $10 additional per annum, your committee would respectfully recommend such offer to be accepted, provided the Hebrew Education Society has the use of their school room and its furniture for as long a period as the school remains in operation ; we also hope that the accession of members will enhance the income of the Society one or two hundred dollars, while every one will then feel the importance of making up any deficiency that may arise.

The above is respectfully submitted

On motion of Mr. I. Leeser, seconded by A. T. Jones, the following was unanimously adopted :

"Resolved, That if the Congregation Rodef Shalom can secure to the Education Society the sum of $1,600 per annum for a number of scholars not exceeding 160, and $10 per annum for every additional one, that the School Directors be empowered to enter into the necessary arrangements to open an additional school, provided the said Congregation supply the school-room furniture."

No further reference to this subject appears in the minutes of the Society, and the matter seems eventually to have been left without further action. At this time, (1851-52), Solomon Solis was President of the Society, and Abraham S. Wolf the Chairman of the Board of School Directors. Although the membership-list was growing and many contributed liberally towards its support, the receipts were unequal to the expenditures. The Board of Directors recognized that something had to be done in order to meet the Society's obligations, and a plan to liquidate this indebtedness was proposed that was as unique as it was successful.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers, held October 26, 1851, a committee consisting of Moses Nathans, Hyman Pollock, Isidore Binswanger, Z. A. Davis and Moses A. Dropsie, which had been appointed "to take into consideration the most feasible plan in order to raise funds for the benefit of the Society . . .", made the following report :

"Your committee to take into consideration the most feasible plan to raise funds for the benefit of the Hebrew Education Society, beg leave to report that the following three propositions were submitted and considered by them:

1. To give a series of lectures on the subject of our 'Religion, History and Education' by the most eminent and available men.
2. To give a concert, provided the aid of Mr. Maretzek and his company can be secured.

3. To give a Ball, under the auspices of the Board of the Hebrew Education Society and thirteen gentlemen to be selected from the Jewish community in the City (in all 30) who are to appoint a committee of ten among themselves to serve as acting managers.

JULIUS STERN

Board of Officers, 1848-1850

The first proposition, your committee deems inexpedient at present, as the funds of the Society do not allow trying an experiment which leaves any doubt of its success.

The second was thought would prove most profitable to the Society, most welcome to the public and least troublesome to the Board, provided the gratuitous aid of Mr. Maretzek and at least part of his company, could be secured; the committee endeavored to meet Mr. M. to solicit his aid and hear his views on the subject, but failed in meeting him.

The third proposition would also, no doubt, promote the object of the Society, if the Board will it, and are ready to share the trouble a Ball imposes on them. All of which is respectfully submitted."

EDWIN W. ARNOLD
Secretary, 1864—1866

At a special meeting held November 28, 1852, the committee reported that it had been decided on to give a ball and names were suggested as managers; but at the meeting of December 12th, the secretary stated "that it was utterly impossible to get a sufficient number of gentlemen to serve as a Ball Committee, having personally notified most of those proposed, a majority of whom had declined." It was then resolved "to give a public dinner and invite to it several influential Israelites of Philadelphia, not members of the Society, as well as some men of national reputation, in order to give to the affair the necessary prominence and brilliancy." Abraham Hart was elected chairman or president of the "First Charity Dinner Committee;" Joseph H. Cohen, L. J. Leberman, David Pesoa and Henry Cohen, vice - presidents; Joseph Newhouse, treasurer, and Isidore Binswanger, secretary. The Fuel Society of Philadelphia, being without a regular income sufficient to defray its running expenses, was in the same predicament as the Hebrew Education Society, and it was decided that one-third of the proceeds of the dinner should be turned over to the Fuel Society. Lyon J. ter from Mr. I. Binswanger, inclosing one from Mr. Jos. Selig-read as follows:

S. SOLIS, Esqr., President of the H. E. S., Philada.

Dear Sir:

The very lively interest I feel in the prosperity of our Society, induced me when I found last Sunday "that sufficient encouragement was not given" to the projected Ball, to address a letter of inquiry to the President of the German H. B. S., of N. Y. in regard to a Dinner; hoping that since many of the gentlemen comprising our Board of Managers were so much more in favor of a Dinner than a Ball, one might perhaps be gotten up, yielding even a larger amount to our Society than a Ball would have done: I therefore take pleasure in enclosing to you herewith the answer received from N. Y.

You will please use your own discretion in calling a special meeting of the Board to consider the expediency of giving an Anniversary Dinner for the benefit of our Society and the Fuel Society or not.

[ENCLOSURE,—COPY.]

NEW YORK, 15 Decr., 1852.

MR. I. BINSWANGER, Pha.

Dear Sir:

In reply to your inquiry respecting our Anniversary Dinner, I state to you the result of my experience at our last Dinner: The viands, without wine, with which we were furnished by Mr. Joseph Cohn, 56 Orchard St., viz. $1.25 per head, a Mr. A. Somers here furnishes, to my taste at least, a better dinner and charges $1.37½. We had about 325 guests; they drank some 25 baskets of Champagne and 10 doz. Hock, and smoked 2000 Segars; our room cost us $150. Music $30. The waiters were furnished by Cohn; our total expense was about $900. Our Rec'ts. $3,500. A very cheering result for our Society, and trust you may be equally successful in raising funds for your poor.

With much Respect,

Your friend and Serv.,

Owing to the absence of Mr. Binswanger at this meeting, the matter was deferred to an adjourned meeting held January 2, 1853, when "it was resolved that the Society should get up a dinner under the supervision of the Board and such other gentlemen as they may think fit to add to their number, for the benefit of this and the Fuel Society, $\frac{2}{3}$ to the former and $\frac{1}{3}$ to the latter, provided a Cosher dinner can be procured on satisfactory terms."

The "First Charity Dinner" was held on the evening of February 23, 1853, in the Sansom Street Hall (now occupied by MacKellar, Smiths & Jordan, type-founders, on Sansom street below Seventh).

"Of the many dinners that have been given in this city," said a writer (Arthur Cannon) in the North American of March 2, 1853, "which we have attended, this eclipsed them all in the order, propriety and good feeling manifested by the company, and the good taste that pervaded the whole of the arrangements, even the most minute, and which reflect great credit on the

There was a bountiful supply of all the substantials, delicacies and luxuries of life ; the wines and liquors were of the choicest kinds, and in great profusion. The confectionary, pastry and ornamental pieces were of a novel and beautiful description. The Hall was brilliantly illuminated by several massive chandeliers, in addition to which there were numerous wax candles, which diffused a soft and mellow light over the tables . . .

The President was supported on his right by George M. Dallas, former Vice-President of the United States ; Rev. Dr. Morris Raphall, of New York ; William B. George M. Dallas responded to the toast, "Civil and Religious Liberty," and his response was especially fine. In answering to the toast, "The Patriots of the Revolution," William B. Reed spoke of the part played by Jews in the war for independence. "There were Jewish soldiers in our ranks. There was Jewish blood shed on our soil. There are Jews now proud of their revolutionary lineage; and no word was said, no deed done by our Christian ancestors, whose wise counsels and brave spirits conducted and controlled the Revolution, to give pain or offence to that small but devoted and devout band, the followers of Israel, who being here, acted up to their steady principles of loyalty to the land where their lot is cast." Terse, eloquent and pregnant with wit were the responses of Morton McMichael, "The Press;" Isaac Leiser, "Education;" Moses A. Dropsie, "Our Glorious Mission;" Mayor Gilpin, "Philadelphia;" and the others, all of which, a chronicler relates, the audience received with "prolonged and enthusiastic applause."

Over five thousand dollars was received by the managers of the First Annual Charity Dinner, of which two thousand five hundred dollars ($2,524.64) went into the coffers of the Hebrew Education Society. So successful in every way was this, the virgin effort of the Board of Manag-

The second dinner was held on Thursday evening, February 2, 1854, in the hall on Sansom street. Abraham Hart again served as President and Joseph Newhouse as Treasurer. The vice-presidents were L. J. Leberman, Isidore Binswanger, David Pesoa and Abraham S. Wolf. Abraham Finzi acted as secretary. Solomon Solis was chairman of the Committee on "Toasts," Simon W. Arnold on "Arrangements," Abraham S. Wolf on "Dinner," L. J. Leberman on "Collections."

Morton McMichael, William B. Reed, Charles Gilpin, Dr. Isaacs and Dr. Raphall again graced the occasion with their presence. There were also present Dr. J. K. Mitchell, William Birney, the Rev. Jacob Frankel (who said grace in Hebrew) and Benjamin Harris Brewster, later Attorney General of the United States. Dr. Mitchell responded to the toast, "Our Sister Charities," and Mr. Brewster spoke with rare wit and eloquence upon "Civil and Religious Liberty." The last toast, "Consolidation,—the consolidation of the City and County of Philadelphia this week in our legislative halls; the consolidation of the friends of humanity of all creeds this evening in our dining hall," was drunk with great fervor and enthusiasm by all the gentlemen present. Moses A. Dropsie, who had been again asked to respond to one of the toasts, was absent by reason of the death of his mother. This dinner has been called one of the notable events in Philadelphia Jewish history.

The receipts from the second banquet gratified the managers and those interested in getting it up,—three thousand dollars was distributed among the societies. The Hebrew Education Society received two-thirds and the remainder was divided among the Hebrew Fuel Society, the Ladies' Hebrew Benevolent Society, the Ladies' German Benevolent Society, the Ladies' Hebrew Sewing Society and the United Hebrew Benificent Society. The year following a ball was given instead of a dinner and proved such a success financially that it was thought expedient to continue this form of entertainment, and thus the Hebrew Charity Ball Association sprang into existence. It owes its origin to the members of a committee appointed by the President of the Hebrew Education Society, and it is this small band of devoted workers that made possible the association that annually gives a ball with such good

There had been some changes in the faculty of the school. Michael M. Allen and Miss Bomeisler had resigned, and it was necessary to fill their places. It was dedicated on November 12, 1854, and the Rev. Isaac Leeser, Moses A. Dropsie, Dr. Morais, Rev. Gabriel Papé, Rev. Lazarus Naumberg and the Rev. Jacob Frankel took part in the services. The Hebrew Sunday School Society vacated their rooms in the Phoenix Hose House at this time, and the schools were established in the Education Society's new edifice on Seventh street.

The community of interest which the Hebrew Education Society centered through its activity at this period, is indicated by the following extract from the minutes of the meeting of the Board of Managers held August 3, 1856, when "a communication from the Congregation Rodef Shalom was received and read, asking for the use of the lower room (of the school house, Seventh and Wood streets) as a temporary synagogue.

It was resolved, 'that the use of the lower room of the school house be granted to the Congregation Rodef Shalom free of charge, with the restriction that such use of the room is not to interfere with the permission given to the Hebrew Sunday School to occupy the same, and also that gas may be introduced at the expense of the Congregation.' The society suffered a great loss in June, 1854, in the death of its first President, Solomon Solis, who had uninterruptedly served since its foundation as its executive officer and as member of the Board of School Directors. Abraham S. Wolf was unanimously elected in his stead. The officers for the following year (1855) were: Abraham S. Wolf, president; Rev. Isaac Leeser, vice-president; Abra-

The first legacy bequeathed to the Hebrew Education Society has been the largest. Judah Touro, a public-spirited citizen of New Orleans, and well-known as a philanthropist, died on January 18, 1854, in the eightieth year of his age. To the Hebrew Education Society he bequeathed twenty thousand dollars.

The preparatory school continued to receive the active support of the public, and the educational advantages to be derived from attendance at its sessions, led to a large increase in the number of pupils. The attendance became more regular, and the reputation of the school increased. The president of the Hebrew Education Society, Abraham S. Wolf, in his annual report said, that "he had the pleasing intelligence to report that it (the school) had gained the reputation of being, if not superior, at least equal to any Hebrew school in the country."

In 1862 Abraham S. Wolf, after serving for eight years as presiding officer of the Education Society, declined a re-election. Desiring still to take an active interest in its work, he was elected a Director. Mr. Dropsie succeeded him as President.

Since the establishment of the Hebrew Education Society in 1848, the Jewish population had largely increased. Synagogues had sprung up all over the country. Many of them failed for lack of an efficient person to minister to the wants of the congregation. The incumbents were often men of scholarly attainments and well versed in Hebrew lore, but they could not speak English idiomatically and had not received the training so necessary for a theologian. The greater number of them were, by profession, Hebrew teachers,—and they were nothing more. The establishment of a theological seminary was as much a necessity in 1865, as the schools for the education of Jewish children had been sixteen years before.

No better illustration of the general conditions existing in the Jewish community of Philadelphia at this period can be afforded than by a citation of the Annual Report of the Society for 1864, which was apparently the first report printed for general circulation. We here append this document in full :

ANNUAL REPORTS
OF THE
HEBREW EDUCATION SOCIETY
OF

Presented at the Meeting held on June 5th, 1864.

The Annual Meeting of this institution was held on Sunday, June 5th, at the school-house, when the following officers were elected to serve for the current year: Moses A. Dropsie, President; Alfred T. Jones, Vice-President; Abm. Hart, Treasurer; Edwin W. Arnold, Secretary; Abm. Finzi, Assistant Secretary; I. Binswanger, C. Bloomingdale, H. De Boer, Samuel Hecht, C. Johnson, Isaac Leeser, Augustus Mailert, Rev. Sabato Morais, Michael Moyer, D. H. Solis, S. Teller, and A. S. Wolf, Managers. The subjoined Reports were then presented, and it was resolved that they should be inserted in the Occident, and issued also in pamphlet form, in order to inform the public of the working of this Association. It will be seen from the Report of the chairman of the school committee, that it is contemplated to endeavor to enlist public sympathy with the work in hand, in order to collect the means to secure the establishment of a Hebrew College under the supervision of the Society, as its charter contemplates. It is needless for us to urge this matter on the attention of our friends, as we have done so often already. If the time for action has not yet come to commence a college for Israelites in this country, it must soon be so. Congregations not only increase by immigration, but also by the natural increase from children born in this country. But with the augmentation of numbers, knowledge has not progressed at an equal rate; wealth has abundantly multiplied under God's blessing, but the means of training our youth for the service of Heaven are still lamentably deficient. The question therefore resolves itself simply in this, Shall we make the effort, whether we fail or not, to erect a house for Jewish science in Philadelphia or elsewhere? The central position and general healthfulness of the climate, together with the easy access to good libraries, would point out Philadelphia as the future central seat for Jewish education ; but we only express the general sentiment of our friends in stating, that no objection will be made on the part of our residents should the public good require the location of the school elsewhere. But let the effort only be made to start the good enterprise, and let all who have it at heart lay aside all sectional and local jealousy, and act as the best interests of religion demand. This is all we ask, and all that our Society contemplates by initiating the present movement.

REPORT OF THE CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD OF SCHOOL DIRECTORS.

To the President and Members of the }
Hebrew Education Society. }

Gentlemen :

A number of years have elapsed since the custom of presenting an Annual Report to the Society has been discontinued ; but as it is no doubt your wish to be informed of the progress of the Society and the school under its charge, I respectfully submit a statement of the affairs of the Society.

Through the exertions of the Managers, the investments of the Society have been kept almost unimpaired, a committee for the last three years having obtained voluntary contributions to cover the deficiency, which course, however, it is hoped will in future be obviated by every member securing at least an additional member, and by all uniting to promote the usefulness of the Society. The school is now in the fourteenthth year of its existence, and is steadily, though quietly, progressing. The Rev. L. Bittenwieser, assisted by Mr. H. Polano, has charge of the Hebrew department, consisting of spelling, reading, grammar, translation, and a study of catechism. The English department is in the hands of Mr. John McClintock, assisted by Miss Esther Davidson and Miss Julia B. Eckstein, and comprises the following studies: spelling, reading, definition, grammar, etymology, geography, arithmetic, American history, English history, and natural philosophy. The German is taught by Mr. Bittenwieser and Latin by Mr. McClintock. The number of pupils on the roll at present is one hundred and eight (thirty-six girls and seventy-two boys), with the prospect of an increase after vacation, which will require the employment of an.

other teacher for the primary class. Of the above number, sixty-six are non-paying pupils.

The expectation of the Managers that the number of pupils would increase to such an extent as to require branch schools, is not likely to be realized, as a number of congregational schools have been lately established, which naturally prevents that accession to our school which it would otherwise have received.—Viewing these congregational schools as auxiliaries to ours, it was deemed of the utmost importance, and consequently resolved, to form a theological class for boys not less than twelve years of age to be educated for the Jewish ministry, and that when sufficient support shall have been secured suitable professors be engaged to teach the higher branches. It has been our privilege, under the blessing of Providence, to call into existence an institution that has now stood the test of time, and may fairly challenge comparison with any educational establishment of the kind in the country.

Education, the greatest boon which we can leave our children, is here diffused to rich and poor alike. Children can receive religious instruction combined with all branches of an English education, and learn besides other languages without being obliged to go to several schools, or to have several private teachers for all the various branches, which gives children but little time for recreation. The founders of our Society have, with much forethought, obtained a charter to enable us to establish a High School or College. The late Judah Touro endowed our Society munificently; and shall we, the members of the Hebrew Education Society, longer permit this want in our city, nay, in our whole country, to exist, of having no institution, no house of learning, where our young men can be properly educated for the elevated position of teachers and ministers? At no time in the history of our beloved country have our people enjoyed a greater degree of material prosperity than at present. Congregations, springing up in all parts of the land, are anxious to engage capable men for their guides and instructors; but where is the college in the whole country that can offer the opportunity for our native young men to become there qualified for the position of expounding the law and giving instruction in the holy language?

No city is more centrally located for this purpose, nor is any Society better prepared to fill this want than ours. Let us therefore, collectively and individually, put forth our energies to carry out to the full extent the object of our Society, which is not controlled by any particular congregation, but recognizes only the cause of religious and scientific education in its broadest sense. Let us enlist every well-wisher of Israel here and elsewhere in the erection of a temple of learning worthy of the American Israelites; and, with God's blessing, we will leave to posterity the richest legacy we can give them. Let meetings of all the Israelites of the city be called at an early day, and let us see how large a permanent fund can be made up, or what ways and means can be devised to carry the above suggestion into execution.

Respectfully submitted,

(Signed) I. BINSWANGER,

REV. DR. M. JASTROW
Vice President 1867-1874
Provost Maimonides College
(Talmud, Jewish Literature and Hebrew Philosophy)

On December 4, 1864, a meeting was held in the National Guard's Hall, Race street below Sixth, under the auspices of the Hebrew Education Society and the presidents of the various congregations in the city, for the purpose of considering the feasibility of establishing a Jewish Theological College. The call had been issued by a committee appointed by the President of the Education Society, and consisted of Isidore Binswanger, chairman, Moses A. Dropsie, Isaac Leiser, Charles Johnson and Samuel Hecht. Nothing of importance was done at this meeting. While this project was being agitated, it was resolved to apply to the State Legislature for a supplementary act to the Act incorporating the Society, so that the pupils of the schools of the Education Society could be admitted to the High Schools of the city without previous attendance in the public schools. Governor Curtin signed the act on April 11, 1866. By this the schools of the Hebrew Education Society took rank with the best grammar schools in Mayer S. Isaacs, A. S. Saroni and Henry Josephi, of New York; M. Umstadter of Norfolk, Va., and Moses Friedenwald of St. Louis, were the Trustees of the first Jewish theological college in the United States.

It was found necessary for the support of the college to create a permanent endowment fund, which afterwards became known as the "maintenance fund." It was upon this foundation that the college was established. Abraham Hart and Isidore Binswanger gave five hundred dollars each; L. J. Leberman, two hundred and fifty dollars; Moses A. Dropsie, Morris Rosenbach, Lazarus Mayer, Charles Bloomingdale and Joseph Newhouse, two hundred dollars the city. This was a privilege possessed by no other private school in the First School District of Pennsylvania.

It was decided to establish the seminary under the joint auspices of the Hebrew Education Society and the Board of Delegates of American Israelites. Abraham Hart, Moses A. Maimonides College was the name given to the institution. The course of study was very elaborate, for it was the intention of the Trustees to ground the pupils thoroughly in a knowledge of Jewish law and traditions. The Greek, Latin, German, French, Hebrew and Chaldaic languages (and their literatures), were in the curriculum: the natural sciences, history, mathematics, astronomy, moral and intellectual philosophy, constitutional history and the laws of the United States; belles lettres, homiletics, comparative theology: the Bible and its commentaries, the Mishna and its commentaries, the Talmud and its commentaries, Jewish history and literature, Jewish philosophy, Yad ha-chazakah, and Shulchan 'Aruch.

Isaac Leeser, who had long advocated the organization of a school of theology, became Provost of the Maimonides College and President of its Faculty. Abraham Hart was President and Mayer Sulzberger, Esq., Secretary of the Board of Trustees. The college was truly fortunate in the selection of its faculty, and it may be stated with due confidence, that no Jewish educational institution in this country had (or has now) upon its roll of instructors such distinguished names as those of Leeser, Morais and Jastrow. Isaac Leeser held the chair of English literature, logic and homiletics; Dr. Sabato Morais, Biblical exegesis; Dr. Marcus Jastrow, the Talmud, Jewish literature and Hebrew philosophy; Dr. Aaron S. Bettelheim, Mishna, Yad ha-chazakah and the Shulchan 'Aruch, (Dr. Bettelheim resigned in consequence of his appointment as Rabbi in Richmond); L. Bittenwieser, Hebrew and Chaldaic languages and literatures; William H. Williams (secretary to the Faculty), Latin, mathematics and geography. At a later date Rev. literature and allied subjects, and Hyman Polano in Hebrew and Mishna. Provision was made by which students of Maimonides College were enabled to take certain courses in the University of Pennsylvania, for which the University, with great generosity, charged but a nominal fee.

On May 9, 1869, Moses A. Dropsie, President of the Hebrew Education Society and of the Maimonides College, in his report to the Society, stated as follows:

"Twenty years have elapsed since the formation of this Society, and during that period great difficulties have beset it; but the large number that have been educated at your school, and the character of your instruction, attest that your faithfulness and perseverance have overcome the threatened dangers. You were early convinced of the necessity of a higher mental training than that imparted in the school, where instruction was given only in the primary branches of an English and Hebrew education; and you felt that, in this republic, where man's powers of mental development are unrestrained by political or social causes, where rapid strides are made in the world's progress, where institutions for the acquisition of knowledge are rapidly multiplying ; there should be established an institution of Jewish learning combined with all the knowledge that the higher educational institutions afford.

"At the original formation of your Society, provision was made for the establishment of a college, when the proper means were procured.

"After patiently waiting for years, the auspicious moment arrived and Maimonides College was founded.

"A year has passed since its formation; and I now propose to give some account of it. Primarily, it owes its existence to the Rev. Isaac Leeser, and none know better than you, his co-laborers in Jewish education, that for the advancement of Judaism he dedicated his existence. The establishment of this college was one of the cherished objects of his life ; and at length, when his incessant efforts were rewarded by its formation, death closed his labors ere he saw the fruition of his hopes. His death is an irreparable loss to the College. In honor of his memory, the Trustees have termed the first professorship of the Talmud, the Leeser Professorship.

"The Trustees in the administration of the College have experienced the difficulties which have beset many of the American colleges. They have not received the support and encouragement which the enterprise merits. Nearly all the means that have been contributed have been furnished by the Jews of Philadelphia. To place the College on a permanent foundation whereby it may successfully accomplish its purpose, it is necessary that there be thoroughly organized efforts for its support. To this end appeals should be made to all who feel an interest in its success. Money is required not only to defray expenses necessarily incident to the College, but also for the payment of the board and lodging of those students who are unable to do so.

“Mr. Leiser bequeathed to the College his valuable library, a number of generous donors have presented valuable books and the Trustees have purchased a few at the recent sales at Amsterdam. I presume that these now form the best collection in the United States of works by Jewish authors on the Bible, Jewish Religion, Philosophy, Science, Oriental Philology, Literature, etc.

ABRAHAM ADLER
Vice-President, 1874—1878
President, 1878—till death in 1880

“Renewed efforts should be made for its increase ; many could contribute works of value that remain hidden or unused which if given to the Library would be productive of good. A building should be purchased for the exclusive use of the College, and therein proper provision could be made for an increased number of students. In this building the Library should be placed and properly supervised, and its exhibition might thus, by a kind of object teaching, demonstrate the necessity for its enlargement.

"I have thus endeavored to state briefly an account of Maimonides College. The early history of many of the American institutions of learning is a history of struggles, continued battles with adversity, till at length friends appeared and rescued them from peril.

"Within a recent period noble hearted men have endowed American colleges with munificent gifts, and have thus embalmed their names in honor to be remembered by remote ages. How long shall Maimonides College struggle? surely our people, by the recollection of the learning and devotion of our ancestors, have sufficient incentive without these examples to make this College a blessing and an ornament to American Judaism."

SIMON MUHR

Treasurer, 1875-1876

That both College and School were organized on a broad and comprehensive plan, larger indeed than the circumstances warranted, is perhaps sufficiently manifest from what has been noted above, but a further light is thrown upon this

"Although the school has not increased in numbers, I have yet the pleasing intelligence to report, that it has gained the reputation of being if not superior, at least equal to any other Hebrew School in the country."

It was on February 1, 1868, that Isaac Leeser died. He had come to Philadelphia in 1829, when he succeeded the Rev. Abraham Israel Keys as minister of the Congregation Mickvé Israel, and from that time to the close of his life he labored for the holy cause of education with a stout heart and ever-ready aspect of the subject by the following extracts: In his Annual Report, May 20, 1855, the President stated:

"In conclusion let me say, that however difficult our task has been, the reflection that the school will eventually prove to be the most desirable institution for the education of Jewish youth in the United States, is sufficient compensation for all our labors, and therefore sincerely recommend to continue to persevere in their good work."

On June 5, 1859, the President said in his Annual Report :

A Professorship of German and French Languages.

OF THE FACULTY.

1. The Professors shall constitute "The Faculty of Arts," to whom, as a body, shall be committed the immediate regulation and government of the Collegiate Department, subject to the rules and statutes and the control of the Board of Trustees.

2. The College shall be under the supervision of the Provost, who shall make report in relation to it to the Board at least once a year.

3. Stated meetings of the Faculty shall be held every month, for the purpose of administering the general discipline of the College; and special meetings, as often as the business of the institution may require, to be called by the Provost or a majority of the members. At all meetings of the Faculty, the Provost shall preside, or in his absence a chairman can be elected.

4. The Faculty shall appoint a Secretary from its own body whose duty it shall be to keep the minutes of their proceedings, which shall be, at all times, open to the inspection of the Trustees.

5. No proceedings of the Faculty shall be considered as valid, unless passed by a majority of the members at a meeting formally constituted.

6. It shall be the duty of the Faculty to make reports to the Board at their stated meetings, upon the state of the Collegiate department, stating particularly the names and residences of such students as have been admitted into, or have left the institution since the last report, with such remarks as they may deem expedient.

7. It shall be the special duty of the Provost, to visit and superintend the various departments; to see that the rules and statutes are duly carried into effect, to report to the Board every instance of refusal and neglect to comply with such rules and statutes, and to advise and suggest such alterations and improvements as he may deem best calculated to promote the welfare and usefulness of the institution.

OF THE CLASSES.

1. The students shall be distributed into five classes.
2. No applicant shall be admitted into the Freshman class under the age of 14; any special exception shall be decided by the Board, upon the application of the Faculty. His fitness must appear on examination, to be conducted by the Professors, who must concur in opinion that he is qualified in such branches as shall be prescribed by the Board.

The requisites for entering the Freshman class shall be as follows :

LATIN—Cæsar, Virgil, Sallust, Odes of Horace.

ENGLISH—The elements of English grammar and of modern Geography.

HEBREW—The translation of the historical portions of the Bible with facility.

ARITHMETIC, including fractions and extraction of roots.

4. The Faculty shall keep a book called the Matriculation book, in which every candidate for entrance into this College shall, on his admission, have his name, age and residence entered, and the name and residence of his parent or guardian.

5. No student shall be admitted to advanced standing, without being as fully instructed as the class to which admission is asked, in all the studies in which the class has been instructed.

6. Vacation shall be from the 10th of July to the 31st of August.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

1. The subjects of instruction in the institution shall be the following:—

Greek, Latin, German, French, Hebrew, Chaldaic and their literatures, the Natural Sciences, History, Mathematics, and Astronomy, Moral and Intellectual Philosophy, Constitutional History and Laws of the United States, Belles Lettres, Homiletics, Comparative Theology, the Bible with its commentaries, the Mishnah with its commentaries, the Shulchan 'Aruch, Yad ha-chazakah, Jewish History and Literature, Hebrew Philosophy and the Talmud with its commentaries.

Board, and of such other Trustees as shall attend; after every examination the students who are distinguished in each class shall be arranged in the order of merit.

3. No student shall be suffered to proceed to a higher class who shall not, on examination, show himself master of the studies of the preceding year, but he may be allowed the privilege, (if the faculty shall judge it expedient to grant it,) of a second examination for admission thereto, at the opening of the next succeeding year.

4. Punishment shall be exclusively directed to a sense of duty, and the principles of honor and shame, and shall consist of private admonition by a Professor—admonition in the presence of the Faculty—admonition in the presence of the Faculty and of the class of the offender—removal to a lower class—suspension for a limited time from college—dismissal—expulsion.

5. No punishment except private admonition shall be inflicted, unless ordered by a resolution of a majority of the whole of the Faculty; nor shall the punishment of expulsion be inflicted unless it be first sanctioned by a vote of the Trustees. In case of dismissal, the offender may be re-admitted, but the effect of expulsion shall be an utter disqualification of the individual for re-admission into this institution, or of receiving any of its honors.

6. The fees for tuition of each year shall be one hundred dollars, payable at the commencement thereof; and no student shall be considered as entitled to his seat in the class for the term, until such payment is made. Notice that the tuition money is due, and that the Treasurer will at times attend (the time then to be stated) shall be given by the Secretary.

7. The Board sanction the institution of a Literary Society, to consist of the students and alumni of the college, or such of them as shall be admitted members thereof, when suitable rooms can be appropriated for their use. The said society to be under the general control and supervision of the Faculty.

OF COMMENCEMENTS AND CONFERRING DEGREES IN THE ARTS.

1. There shall be an annual commencement of graduates in the arts on the last Thursday morning of each term, at 10 o'clock.

2. Candidates for the degree of Bachelor in the Arts or Divinity shall be publically examined by the Faculty in the collegiate departments, in the presence of the Committee of Examination and such other members of the Board of Trustees as may attend.

3. The Provost shall report the names of those who shall have been found worthy of receiving such degree to the Board who shall, if the report be approved, confer such degree accordingly. But no degree shall be conferred unless by the vote of the Trustees; and every student, before he can be recommended for the degree of Bachelor of Arts or Divinity, shall settle his account with the Treasurer.

5. The order of the commencement shall be directed by the Faculty.

At no time during the history of the college did a great number of students matriculate, and few graduated and received their degrees. Among those who were trained for the Jewish ministry were Mr. Marcus Eliezer Lam, now a teacher in the Hebrew School of the Education Society at Touro Hall; Rev. David Levy, now of New Haven, Conn., and the Rev. Dr. Samuel Mendelsohn, at present minister of the Jewish synagogue of Wilmington, N. C.

Year after year the reports of the President and Treasurer gave evidence that the public never thoroughly favored or appreciated the work of the Society, and that its management was not conducted on a business basis. The fund which had been left to the Society by Judah Touro was constantly decreasing, yet we notice that teachers were continually asking for additional pay, and in most instances the increase was granted.

At a meeting of the Board held June 21, 1868, on motion of Mr. Abraham S. Wolf it was carried, "that the Board send a letter to Mrs. A. Hart, Mrs. Levi Mayer, Mrs. G. Silberberg, Mrs. I. Binswanger and Mrs. A. E. Massman, requesting them to take the initiatory steps towards calling a meeting of ladies, for the purpose of holding a FAIR for the benefit of the Hebrew Education Society; and on motion of Dr. Jastrow that the communication be placed in the hands of a committee of three to call upon the ladies mentioned, was also agreed to." Drs. Jastrow, and Bettelheim and Mr. Heilbron were appointed the committee.

Mrs. Abraham Hart declined to serve, and Mrs. Henry Cohen's name was substituted.

At a subsequent meeting a motion of Dr. Jastrow was adopted "that a committee be appointed to confer with the Board of Directors of the Jewish Hospital relative to coming to some definite understanding about the proposed 'Fair,' and that they have full power to act."

The President appointed on the committee Messrs. A. Hart, I. Binswanger and Jos. Heilbron.

At the next meeting of the Board of Managers, "Mr. A. Hart made a verbal report on Fair, stating that the committee from the Hebrew Education Society had met a similar committee from the Jewish Hospital Association and the latter declined to act in conjunction with us as they deemed it inexpedient at the present time, they having other methods of raising money."

The holding of the "Fair" was therefore abandoned.

At the Board meeting of December 18, 1870, the following offered by Mr. M. Sulzberger was adopted: "Resolved—that some proper person be requested by the President to deliver a paid lecture at some time that may be agreeable to him, before the Israelites of Philadelphia, on the subject of Hebrew Education."

HENRY FRIEDBERGER
Board of Officers, 1878--1886

At the meeting held March 19, 1871, the President reported that in accordance with the resolution of the Board, adopted at its last meeting, he had requested the Rev. Dr. Jastrow to deliver a lecture upon the subject of Hebrew education, in aid of this Society, but that gentleman having refused, he (the President) then conferred with Mr. S. Wolf, of Washington, making a similar request of him, to which he at once consented, but a previous engagement to give an unpaid lecture in the German Synagogue prevented an arrangement satisfactory to all.

At a special meeting of the Board of Managers, held October 6, 1872, the Treasurer made a verbal report showing a very melancholy state of the finances of the Society, and expressing the belief that under the present circumstances the school could not continue to exist much longer.

HENRY C. DALSEMER
Board of Officers, 1880--1882

The following resolution offered by Mr. Mayer Sulzberger was adopted and referred to the Committee on the re-establishment of the School: "Resolved—That a committee of — be appointed to confer with the Congregations Mickvé Israel and Beth-El Emeth, with a view to transfer to the said Congregations the building and furniture of this Society, under an express agreement and condition that certain arrangements for teaching the Hebrew language and its literature shall be forever kept up in such manner and under such restrictions as may be determined on."

Various resolutions in this direction were adopted at most of the meetings of the Society and Board, but no definite action was taken until December, 1873, when the work of Maimonides College was discontinued, after an activity extending through six years. The organization as such remained in existence, and at the annual meeting, held May 17, 1874, the Trustees elected were: B. J. Hart, A. M. Frechie.

open to the reception of students from all parts of the country. The contributions of money, which citizens of New York seemed so eager to subscribe to the college when its objects were first set forth, were not forthcoming. Lack of financial aid from other cities and a want of interest in the undertaking, led to its discontinuance. The Jewish Theological Seminary in New York is in a measure the successor of Maimonides College. It was instituted in 1886, chiefly through the efforts of Dr. Morais.

The growth of the educational movement, which has become so marked within recent years and which has manifested itself especially in the domain of Jewish history and literature, may very justly be regarded as indicating the possibility of re-establishing Maimonides College on the lines planned for it by its projectors, and on a basis that would afford the institution that security and permanence which earlier conditions appear to have precluded. In such event the valuable franchise which the Hebrew Education Society possesses in its charter could be adequately utilized, and the educational system of the Society be thereby made complete. Thus the labors of Isaac Leeser, the self-devotion of Sabato Morais, the philanthropy of Judah Touro would be brought to fruition, and the hopes and aspirations of their earnest-hearted coadjutors be ultimately realized.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Hebrew Education Society was celebrated on Saturday evening, April 1, 1876, at Concordia Hall, on Callowhill street below Fifth street. Rev.

The Society has been drawn into competition with two great educational systems, namely, as to the English branches, the public schools; and in Hebrew studies, with the congregational schools, and it proceeded at once to meet these altered conditions. A Hebrew school was opened on March 3, 1878, in the committee-room of the Congregation Bené Israel (Children of Israel), on Fifth street above Catharine street. A third school (the teaching of Hebrew still continued in the school house on Seventh street) was opened on October 12, 1879, at the northwest corner of Marshall street and Girard avenue. At this time Isidore Binswanger was President of the Hebrew Education Society, having succeeded Moses A. Dropsie in 1870, who had declined a re-election after having served continuously for eight years. In 1878, Isidore Binswanger, who had been a most active

In the Fall of 1876, the Congregation Rodef Shalom was accorded the use of the Education Society's school house on 7th street near Wood, for the requirements of its congregational school, which was there continued until removed in 1879 to the school house of the Congregation on North 8th street.

was opened at Fourth and Poplar streets. The educational advantages that were offered were quickly taken advantage of, and so many attended these schools that they soon became overcrowded, and larger quarters had to be provided.

Although many Israelites had settled at Port Richmond about the year 1876, the "great exodus" was yet to come. The persecution of the Jews in Russia caused thousands to shake the dust from off their feet and seek a land where they could worship their God as their conscience dictated. The first great wave of Russian immigration reached our shores in 1882, and the influx has continued ever since.

The school at No. 624 Wayne street, Port Richmond, was soon found to be too small to meet the demands of the growing population. The properties, Nos. 2856-58 Lark street, a

The fringe of Jewish population along the northeastern boundary of the city continued to grow, and a colony of Russian immigrants existed there with all the customs, observances and habits of the mother country. The Education Society opened a school on December 28, 1879, at 624 Wayne street, in that part of the city known as "Port Richmond." The school in the B'nai Israel Synagogue was removed to 417 Pine street, and another stone's throw from the Wayne Street School, were secured and entirely remodeled for the use of the Society. The buildings were dedicated on Sunday afternoon, September 16, 1883. The list of those who contributed towards paying for the Industrial School on Lark street, will be found in the appendix. Even these buildings were found inadequate to meet the demands made upon them, and the adjoining property, No. 2854 Lark street, was therefore purchased.

The first industrial school of the Society was opened in October, 1880, on Wayne street. At first it was a school for girls only. Mrs. Simeon Newhouse was the first superintendent, and she was succeeded in 1881 by Miss Rose Kaufman, and the year following by Mrs. Eva Coons. In 1883 a complete system of industrial education was inaugurated. The most approved method of cigar-making was taught to the men, and joinery, wood-turning and general carpentering were soon added to the course. The department of cigar-manufacturing was opened at the suggestion of Mr. A. M. Frechie, who devoted much time and attention to it. The progress made by the pupils was rapid. The trade-school was soon turning out youths, well equipped in the handicraft they had chosen as a means of livelihood.

In 1886 an industrial school was opened in the Seventh street building, and the course in manual training was extended by the addition of iron-filing, chipping, frame making and garment cutting. Thirty boys received instruction in the cigar factory this year (1886). Of these, twenty-five obtained employment at satisfactory wages.

The teaching of Hebrew still continued. The President of the Society, Mr. Isaac Roskam, reported that "more children are now being taught the Hebrew language in this city, or are engaged in the study of Hebrew, than ever before."

In 1888 the attendance at the manual training department of the Lark Street School averaged 22; at the school of the same description (technical) at Seventh and Wood streets, 168 pupils were admitted, of which number 132 resided south of Spruce street; 102 were in the cigar department, 56 were being taught garment cutting, and 10 received instruction in carpentry.

The "Young Women's Union, a branch of the Hebrew Education Society," was projected at a meeting held on February 5, 1885. Its main purpose was the education of the poor children of Russian parentage, then so thickly congregated in the southern portion of our city. The Young Women's Union is, also, a product of the great exodus of 1882. It was organized in 1885, chiefly through the efforts of a small number of young women who appreciated the field of labor thus opened to them. The first officers of the Union were: Miss Fanny Binswanger (who first projected the formation of such a society), president; Miss Tinie Feustman, vice-president; Miss Amelia J. Allen, treasurer; Miss Martha Goldstein, corresponding secretary; Miss Clara Ostheim, recording secretary. The Young Women's Union ceased to be a branch of the Hebrew Education Society in 1897, when it received a charter from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, as an independent organization.

The status of the Society at this stage (1890), is graphically presented in the following report of the then President, Moses A. Dropsie, presented to the Annual Meeting on Sunday, March 7, 1890:

To the Members and Donors of the Hebrew Education Society:

The necessity of educating Jewish youth systematically by competent teachers, with adequate means for instruction in Hebrew, had long been agitated in our community. The knowledge of Hebrew was generally imparted by private teachers, most of whom knew but little beyond the rudiments of the language that they endeavored to teach; and the compensation received by them for tuition was so trifling that they were compelled to pursue other avocations in addition for the means of a livelihood.

For these reasons, the knowledge of Hebrew and of the tenets of Judaism possessed by our youth were extremely limited and vague.

In addition, the text-books used for the instruction of youth in the public and private schools were tinctured with the doctrines of Christianity, reflecting, wittingly or unwittingly, the views and sympathies of the authors and compilers.

This is a true picture of Jewish education in our community fifty years ago, and is a correct representation of the condition of every Jewish community in the United States at that time.

The circumstances of the ignorance of our youth as to their religion, and the low ebb of Hebrew education in our midst, were continually deplored, the difficulties were frequently discussed, but no remedy was adopted. At length, a man arose who indicated the mode of solving this intricate problem. That man was Isaac Leeser, who may be termed the pioneer of American Judaism, whose ardent devotion, self-abnegation, inflexible determination and indomitable energy did more for the advancement of Judaism and the elevation of the Jewish character in the United States than any man who previously or has since existed.

Mr. Leeser's solution of the difficulty was by the formation of this Society; which, it is believed, was the first organization in the United States for the promotion of Jewish education.

Mr. Leeser's views were large and expanded; he sought not only to impart instruction in the rudimental branches of Hebrew education, but he planned that the Jewish youth should be taught the highest branches of Hebrew literature and philosophy, combined with a thorough training of collegiate curriculum. He caused the formation of the Hebrew Education Society on March 7, 1847. It was incorporated by the Legislature of Pennsylvania, April 7, 1848. The charter authorized not only the formation of preparatory schools, but also that of a college, with authority to confer degrees.

The preparatory school was opened on April 7, 1851, and was formed on the model of the public schools. The same text-books were used and the same course of instruction was pursued, to which was added tuition in Hebrew, Latin, French and German.

In 1853, the late Judah Touro, through the influence of Mr. Leeser, bequeathed to the Society the sum of $20,000, which was received on February 5, 1854, and thereupon the building on Seventh Street, below Callowhill, was bought on May 28, 1854, and adapted for the school.

On October 28, 1867, Maimonides College was opened under the auspices of the Society. Its design was to impart to its students a thorough education in Hebrew and some of its cognate languages, combined with Biblical and Talmudical lore, and also with the "humanities," so as to fit them for the rabbinate.

The Rev. Isaac Leeser, the Rev. Dr. M. Jastrow, the Rev. Dr. Bettelheim, and the Rev. S. Morais tendered their services gratuitously as professors in the different branches of Jewish learning, which were gratefully accepted.

The expenses incident to the education and support of the students were greater than Philadelphia alone could defray without difficulty, and the contributions of money from New York, which were promised, not being forthcoming, the college ceased to exist.

The preparatory school was of a high order of excellence, and compared favorably with the best of its rank, notwithstanding which some of our people of advanced thought, but not of advanced education, objected to it for the reason that it was sectarian, the answer to which was, that it was open to all, irrespective of creed, that several of its teachers were not Jews, and among its pupils were some who were not Jews.

Another objection urged was, that the pupils of the school lost the opportunity of being admitted into the High School, when properly qualified, as only pupils of the public schools were eligible for admission into that institution. Application was made to the Legislature of Pennsylvania, which by a special law, placed the pupils of the Hebrew Education Society's School on the same footing as that of the public schools, a privilege not granted or possessed by any private school. Thus this objection was silenced.

About the year 1876 a number of Russian Jewish immigrants settled in the northeastern section of the city, then on the extreme boundary of the populated parts, about three and one-fourth miles from the centre of the city, and in a locality distant from the residences or places of business of our co-religionists. The locality was ill-chosen and lacked the essentials for a proper residence; its only advantage was the cheapness of its houses. On the Society being informed of this colony, they deemed it their duty to provide for its educational and moral wants. It opened on December 28, 1879, a school for its instruction, and subsequently bought three adjoining houses, in which it established schools not only for the mental education of its youth, but also for their manual training, teaching the females sewing, knitting, etc., and the males segarmaking, carpentering, etc.

Owing to lack of interest and support, the Society was compelled to abandon its general preparatory school, and to limit its efforts to the teaching of Hebrew and its translation into English, and of Biblical instruction, etc. For this purpose, it has established three schools in different sections of the city. The manual training school in the northeastern section continues, showing good practical results. The Society had established a more extensive manual training school in its hall on Seventh Street, but, owing to its sale, and another proper locality not yet having been obtained, that school is temporarily suspended.

Owing to the severe oppression suffered by our co-religionists in Russia, about the year 1882, a great exodus took place; thousands abandoned or were driven out of their birthplaces and homes, and sought our country as a refuge and as a haven, where they might enjoy that freedom which our institutions confer on every human being. Upon the advent of the van of these immigrants, thousands continued to flow into our land; their number has become so great that they have peopled not only the large cities, but there is scarcely a village or hamlet in the land that does not contain a representative of the Slavic-Jewish race. Russians, Poles, Roumanians and Hungarians now abound everywhere.

These immigrants were received by our co-religionists kindly and affectionately, especially in Philadelphia, where extraordinary efforts were invoked for the amelioration of their condition and where public sentiment was aroused against their oppressors.

This great increase of a necessitous Jewish population has created a corresponding increase of new and greater burdens on the older Jewish population of this city. These immigrants do not speak our language, are unfamiliar with our manners and customs, and were born and reared in a country surrounded by an ignorant and unenlightened population. They came poor and helpless, unaided and alone; they were unable to fight the new battles that they had to contend with. It soon became apparent that, after caring for their physical wants, that mental and physical education were primary factors affecting their circumstances, and the means of absorbing this incongruous mass into the body politic and adapting them to become citizens and performing their duties and obligations in accord with the laws, customs and manners of our civilized society.

The increase of the Jewish population in the United States during the last forty years has been prodigious. The Rev. Isaac Leeser, who probably had a better knowledge respecting the Jews in the United States, and their number, than any other man, when he wrote a brief chapter on this population in No. III of the Jewish Miscellany, published by the Philadelphia Jewish Publication Society in 5006, (1846), says: "The number of Jews in the city of New York is said to be about 10,000." From estimates based on a computation made about a dozen years since, and on the increase of immigration and births, and deducting the loss by death, it would seem that the Jewish population of New York at present is about 80,000, an enormous increase in forty years! The patriotic pride of our New York co-religionists claims even a greater population than the number here given.

In the same publication Mr. Leeser states that, "There are now three congregations in Philadelphia, numbering about from 1,500 to 1,800 souls." The Jewish population was then probably about 2,500.

An estimate of the Jewish population in Philadelphia at the present time has been made on data gathered from the membership and seat-holders of the congregations, the membership of the charitable and other societies, clubs, etc. From these statistics it is computed that there are from 26,000 to 28,000 Jews in our city. Of this number about 10,000 were born in Slavic and in Hungarian countries. This large population has settled in our midst within the last twelve years, their necessities have made great and increased demands on the Jewish charitable and educational institutions, and though many of that population have succeeded in becoming self-supporting, yet but very few of them are able to contribute or do contribute in relieving the necessities and caring for the well-being of their countrymen. It is a matter of gratulation that our Jewish community, faithful to the principles of Judaism are practically applying them in the relief of the wants, the amelioration of the condition, and the mental and physical education of these immigrants. To accomplish these objects a large number of Jewesses have volunteered their services, and give time, attention, care and thought, with a devotion and self-denial worthy of the holy cause in which they are engaged.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association have also been working to the same end, and have resolved to extend and widen the field of their labors, but at present lack the proper facilities for systematic and thorough work. Unlike the city of New York, this population is not crowded into one locality; it is somewhat distributed over the city, into what might be termed "clusters;" yet by far the greater bulk of it is located in the territory between South Street and Washington Avenue, and Second and Tenth Streets, a territory of one-half mile north and south, and two-thirds of a mile east and west. Within this territory, the Sunday-school Society has established its schools; the Young Women's Union, which was formed in 1885, has located its Kindergarten and a school for teaching kitchen work and housekeeping, under the auspices of the Hebrew Education Society. The ladies forming this organization are producing excellent results. There have been continual complaints of the want of proper halls and rooms for the uses above mentioned. The increasing population has grown beyond the means afforded for the efficient performance of the necessary work, besides which the sanitary condition of the rooms and auxiliaries is not of a proper character. These evils, though long deplored, are not easily remedied.

It is proposed to secure a plot of land on which to erect a hall that should be surrounded with an abundance of light and air, the hall to have rooms capable of accommodating 1,500 Sunday-school children at one time. It will have rooms for the Young Women's Union and Kindergarten; it will have a room for lectures and a library, and it will also contain ample space for the manual training of females and males. It is also proposed to have baths for females and males, a primary want.

Mention has been made of the work of the Young Men's Hebrew Association. In the erection of the building, regard will be shown to its wants, in furnishing lectures and entertainments of musical, social and amusing character, and in the establishment of an employment and intelligence bureau, where information can be furnished of matters which are essential to the Jewish population.

It is proposed to extend the sphere of manual training, especially in regard to females, by teaching them such handiwork as is adapted to their peculiar skill such as mantua-making, millinery, drafting and cutting of garments, phonographic reporting, typewriting, etc. By the aid of steam-power, the trades that heretofore have been taught will be increased in number. In brief, our aim is to form an institution which will contribute more to the education and elevation of the newly-arrived immigrant than the present system and means afford. We propose to erect an institution in which he will feel he has an interest, and with pride and gratitude recognize the philanthropy that cares for him, and thus be stimulated to raise himself to the dignity of a freeman, conscious that, as a member of our great Republic, he should strive by his acts and deportment to prove his appreciation of American citizenship.

The Hebrew Education Society, by the erection of the proposed building, and the uses to which it is to be applied, is not prompted solely for the welfare of Jews alone ; its benevolence and beneficence are not circumscribed by the narrow boundaries that divide mankind into races and sects. Remembering the Divine command given to our ancestors, "Love thy neighbor as thyself," there will be inscribed on the outer walls of their hall the legend, "Free to all, regardless of creed or color."

Our Society is entering on a new career, and the accomplishment of its aims will leave its impress on our community long after we have passed away.

MOSES A. DROPSIE,

President.

In 1890 a plot of ground was purchased at the southwest corner of Tenth and Carpenter streets, for the sum of twelve thousand dollars. It was proposed to erect thereupon an edifice that would be perfectly adapted to the needs of the Society and of kindred organizations. A Building Fund was organized to which the Jews of Philadelphia responded with unprecedented generosity. The names of those who contributed to this fund will be found in the appendix. The cost of erecting the building was thirty thousand and four hundred dollars, and much more was spent for heating apparatus and furnishing. The total expenditure was over fifty thousand dollars. The architect was Mr. William H. Decker, and Mr. Philip H. Somerset, the builder. The building is a substantial edifice built of red brick trimmed with granite. To honor the memory of an early benefactor of the Society, and of a man eminent as a philanthropist, this splendid structure was named Touro Hall. The corner-stone was laid on Tuesday afternoon, September 22, 1891. Perhaps the most interesting document deposited therein was a history of the Society written in Hebrew by the Rev. Dr. Sabato Morais, giving an account of its rise, organization, progress and work.

The dedication took place on November, 27, 1891,—the day set apart by the President of the United States as a day of Thanksgiving. The President, Moses A. Dropsie, Esq., delivered an address, in which he outlined the work of the Society and the great good about to be accomplished. Dr. Morais offered the dedicatory prayer; music was furnished by the orchestra of the Young Men's Hebrew Association: a choir of children sang the concluding hymn, "My Country, 'tis of thee." The services were brief and impressive.

A full report of the proceedings on these interesting occasions is quoted from the Report of the 44th Annual Meeting, held March 13, 1892.

At the last Annual Meeting of the Society the members were informed that a plot of ground, 77 feet on Carpenter Street, Tenth Street 87.11 feet and Paschal Street, 89.7 feet, had been purchased at the southwest corner of Tenth and Carpenter Streets for the sum of $12,000. In March of last year, a contract was made with Philip H. Somerset to erect the building according to plans and specifications furnished by William H. Decker, architect, for the sum of $30,400; and with the Onderdonk Steam-heating and Ventilating Company to heat the building for the sum of $4,637. The cost of erecting the building, including the architect's charges, was $36,249.92, the cost of the ground was $12,000, and sundry charges $700, making a total of $48,949.92.

DEDICATION.

The dedication of the building took place on Thursday afternoon, November 27th (Thanksgiving Day) 1891. The exercises commenced with the Priest's March, from Mendelssohn's "Athalie," performed by the orchestra of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, directed by Mr. Marcus Lewin. A hymn in Hebrew was sung by the children of the Sunday-school, directed by Mr. Samuel Jacobs, with Mr. Bowers as organist. Next followed an address by the President, Moses A. Dropsie, Esq., who was followed by Rev. Dr. S. Morais, with the Dedicatory Prayer. The Children's Choir then sang "My Country, 'tis of thee," which concluded the exercises. The thanks of the Society are due to all who so kindly assisting, made the occasion such a pleasant and successful one. The Reception Committee consisted of the following gentlemen :

CLINTON O. MAYER, Chairman ,	SAMUEL JACOBS,
OSCAR B. TELLER,	ADOLPH EICHHOLZ,
DAVID W. AMRAM,	DAVID KIRSCHBAUM,
WILLIAM B. ROSSKAM,	MAX HERZBERG,

ARTHUR S. ARNOLD,	BERNARD HARRIS.

FIRST SESSION HELD.

The first school session was held in the building on Monday, December 14th, up to which time the work had been carried on at 322 Bainbridge Street ; this building has since been sub-let to the Hebrew Literature Society, an organization consisting entirely of Russians, and has been in existence for the last seven years, which continues that part of our labors formerly carried on by the Young Men's Hebrew Association, the latter taking charge of the Reading room, Library, Lectures and Entertainments in the new building.

HOW THE BUILDING IS BEING OCCUPIED.

The building is occupied by the Sunday-school (with 650 pupils), and Sewing-school (with 285 pupils), of the Hebrew Sunday-school Society.

The Agent of the Immigration Society.

The Auxiliary Charities having in charge the dispensing of the Baron de Hirsch Trust and Employment Bureau.

Hebrew School.

Night School, English branches.

Tin-smithing School.

Dress-making School.

Carpentry School.

The dimensions of the bathing-pool are 14 x 38.6 feet, with a depth ranging from 4 to 5 feet.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE BUILDING.

The amount subscribed to the Building Fund to date,	$30,364 00
Of this amount $1,815.81 was received from the Hebrew Sunday-school Society.
The subscriptions to the Furniture Fund amounted to	2,660 00
Making a total,	$33,024 00

The officers of the Hebrew Education Society during the eventful year in which was consummated the fond desires of many of its former workers, were Moses A. Dropsie, president; Isaac Rosskam, vice-president; Gabriel Blum, treasurer, and David Sulzberger, honorary secretary.

Miss Ellen Phillips, whose demise took place on February 2, 1891, and who had been for many years interested in the success of the Hebrew Education Society, bequeathed to it the sum of fifteen thousand dollars. A bronze tablet erected in her memory was placed in the main hall.

It bears this inscription:
"In memory of Miss Ellen Phillips, a kind friend and generous benefactor of the Society.

The first school session in the new building was held on Monday, December 14, 1891, and from this date the work of the Society has gone on with a full measure of success. A year after the opening of Touro Hall, 1345 pupils had been admitted into the Hebrew course, 919 in the course in English and

THE PRINCIPAL BENEFICIARIES.

The industrial and general education which the Society is disseminating among the Russian refugees settled in this city and in which special direction over five thousand dollars of its income is expended, has been furthered since September, 1892, by the allotment of twenty-four hundred dollars per annum accorded to this Society from the Baron de Hirsh Fund.

Thus the Hebrew Education Society has become the local agency for the educational work of the great charity organized in this country for the benefit of the Russian and Roumanian Jews, by the late Baron Maurice de Hirsch.

This foundation was established by a special deed of trust, executed March 1, 1890, and was committed to a Board of Trustees, with headquarters in New York.

The original committee was composed as follows: Hon. Mayer S. Isaacs, President; Jacob H. Schiff, Vice-President; Dr. Julius Goldman, Secretary; Emanuel Lehman, Treasurer; Hon. Oscar S. Straus, Jesse Seligman, Henry Rice and James H. Hoffman of New York, and Hon. Mayer Sulzberger and Wm. B. Hackenburg of Philadelphia; Hon. A. S. Solomon, General Agent of the Foundation.

The Hon. Oscar S. Straus and Dr. Goldman have resigned hundred thousand dollars per annum; sixty per cent. of this is intended for educational purposes, and from this source is the annual contribution of twenty-four hundred dollars to the Hebrew Education Society obtained.

The Committee have established English schools and Trade Schools in New York, and an Agricultural and Industrial School at Woodbine, New Jersey. The forty per cent. is used to assist industrial immigrants by furnishing them with tools, and if necessary with loans, upon farms they have themselves acquired and demonstrated their ability to work to advantage, etc. The Philadelphia office is conducted by the Auxiliary Branch of the United Hebrew Charities (in Touro Hall.)

The Trust co-operates with existing philanthropic institutions in various places.

MRS. ROSANNA OSTERMAN

Baron Maurice de Hirsch died in Paris in May, 1896, and the deplorable event was made the occasion of a special meeting of the Board of Officers, at which the following resolution was adopted :

“ In solemn resignation to the Divine will, this Society mourns the death of Baron Maurice de Hirsch as that of the noblest philanthropist of modern times and as that of a man who has afforded, not only to Israel, but to all mankind, one of the most signal examples of devotion to his suffering brethren that history has recorded.

“ As almoners of a part of the world-wide benefactions which Baron de Hirsch had instituted during his lifetime, the Hebrew Education Society of Philadelphia has special occasion to testify to the grandeur of his undertaking for the benefit of his suffering co-religionists in this land of their refuge as well as in the lands of their oppression. Here, as elsewhere in the broad expanse of Baron de Hirsch's charity, the foundation of his beneficence has been laid by him on the grand work of education and enlightenment, and these great factors of moral and material well-being he has strengthened by a far-seeing provision for the permanent elevation of the suffering victims of oppression through aiding them to self-maintenance. Thus founded the charity which he has extended to the multitude of his beneficiaries, has become an unmixed good, and thereby his vast munificence has been made a blessing to them and to their posterity.

MRS. MINNIE K. ARNOLD

“The generous bounty and far-reaching benevolence of Baron Maurice de Hirsch will find in the elevation and future development of the Russian Jews in America, both in the Northern and Southern continents, a living monument that is destined to be as lasting as the history of civilization.”

The erection of Touro Hall, and its complete and thorough equipment for its great educational purpose, naturally resulted in soon making the establishment a centre of intellectual activity. This development has manifested itself in many different ways, such as the formation, tentatively it is true, of a class in higher Hebrew as in a measure preparatory for the

the University Extension Society, as communicated to the Secretary of the Education Society and which we quote in full, as follows:

MRS. HORACE A. NATHANS
Board of Officers, 1890—

PHILADELPHIA, February 9, 1894.

My Dear Sir:

I beg to report that the six lecture courses on Civics, arranged originally between Mr. Walter Vrooman and myself, on behalf of the Society, was delivered at Touro Hall on the following dates: September 28, October 5, 12, 17, 24 and 31. Permission to use the hall was very kindly given by the Hebrew Education Society, through yourself. It was originally expected that there would be in attendance a large number of those not in any way connected with the school held under the auspices of the Hebrew Education Society, and Mr. Vrooman expressed great confidence in his ability to secure an audience that would entirely fill the lecture room placed by the Society at our disposal. His expectations in this respect were not realized, so that the course was really given to the older students of your own evening school. This of itself, however, made an excellent audience and one that was no doubt better prepared for the instruction given than a more general audience would have been.

I have to report the closest attention to the lectures, and a wide-awake intelligent interest in the subjects discussed. Several students passed the examination successfully. The conditions of issuing certificates were that an essay should be written at some time while the course was in progress, on some one of the subjects assigned, these conditions having been several times clearly stated to the students.

The names of those who received certificates are Morris Josephson, Joseph I. Komarovski, Julius H. Komarovski and Joseph Katz.

In conclusion allow me to say that the conditions at Touro Hall

PHILIP LEWIN
Board of Officers, 1886—1894

seem excellent for University Extension work, and that it is my strong conviction that if a canvass were properly made, in the ordinary University Extension manner, an audience could be found that would fill the lecture room. The limited attendance to which reference is made above, probably resulted from an attempt to bring the audience too great a distance, and from a lack of familiarity with University Extension methods.

Trusting that you will command my services whenever I can be of any assistance, I am

Very cordially yours,

EDWARD T. DEVINE,

Lecturer.

1897—

In the following Fall season another University Extension course was organized and six lectures were delivered, beginning in November, 1894, and ending in January, 1895. Regarding this course, it is cited in the Annual Report for 1895, that "the lecturer, Mr. Cheesman A. Herrick, was enabled by his distinct and clear enunciation to hold the attention of his audience. The 'talk' at the close of the lecture was invariably instructive and interesting.

The subject, American History, was comprised under the following heads :

- I. Discovery and Early Settlement of America.
- II. Colonial History.
- III. Revolutionary War.
- IV. The Constitution.
- V. National Development.
- VI. Our Great Civil War.

In an article which appeared in the University Extension

Journal, August, 1894, written by Frank S. MRS. H. S. LOUCHHEIM
Board of Officers, 1893—

The outcome of this enterprise is briefly stated in the President's Report, at the annual meeting on March 8, 1896, from which it appears that "the question of University Extension was considered by the Board of Officers, and was debated at considerable length. It was, however, eventually decided that while the lectures had been measurably successful and advantageous, it necessarily shortened the hours of instruction in the entire school, while but a small portion of the pupils understood the lecturer or were benefited thereby; furthermore, it was stated that Ephraim Lederer, Esq., intended continuing his lectures on the Constitution as heretofore, all of which would take away too much time from the regular course of instruction, more especially since the Young Men's Hebrew Association has furnished a series of entertainments and a course of lectures during the entire winter of 1895 and the spring of 1896."

Two other courses of lectures were delivered, the one on the "Victorian Poets," and the other on the "English Novelists."

MRS. EVA COONS
Board of Officers, 1893—

The "English Novelists" series was delivered by Mr. Clyde Furst, on January 27, February 3, 10 and 17, 1898; the subjects being Sir Walter Scott, William Makepeace Thackeray and Charles Dickens, with an average attendance of 149.

In 1895, on the occasion of the high holiday season, a free synagogue for the benefit of the large Jewish population in the district around Touro Hall, was inaugurated in that building. This assembly has been continued during the holidays since its first organization, the arrangements being now under the direct control of the Society.

These free services have proven attractive to the worshippers and generally satisfactory. The excellent personnel of the congregations which assemble, the notable dignity and decorum of the service and the general circumstances attending the occasions, all point to the great desirability of establishing these free services on a permanent basis.

The educational value, the elevating influence and the far-reaching significance of such services, properly established and controlled, cannot but be apparent to those who are conversant with the existing conditions among our Russo-Jewish brethren in the southern section of the city.

ANDREW KAAS
Board of Officers 1892—

At the meeting of the Board, held April 19, 1889, the Secretary reported the following correspondence between himself and Rev. Dr. S. Morais.

PHILADELPHIA, April 18, 1889.

REV. DR. S. MORAIS,

President Theological Seminary.

Dear Sir :

It was brought to the notice of the Board of Officers of the Hebrew Education Society that a number of Hebrew books donated to the Society some time ago were in a bad condition and would cost considerable to put into such shape as to make them available. On motion the Secretary was requested to make the best possible disposition of them. Being a legacy, the books cannot be given away, but by the authority conferred on me by the resolution I have determined to have them bound at my own expense and loan them to the Theological Seminary, until such time as the Board of Officers or the Society may desire that they be returned.

To which the following reply was received:

DAVID SULZBERGER, ESQ.,

Dear Sir :

In the name of the Jewish Theological Seminary Association I thank you for having had the Hebrew books, to which you have reference, bound at your own expense, and through you I beg to thank the officers of the Hebrew Education Society for their offer to let the pupils of said institution have the use thereof for an indeterminate time.

April 19, 1889. Yours very respectfully, S. MORAIS.

Pursuant to the above the following books were sent to the Theological Seminary of New York.

TALMUD—Gittin, Chulin, Yebamoth, Rosh Ha Shanah, Pesachim, Shabath, Berachoth, Baba Batra, Baba Kama, Nidah, Erubin, Zebachim, Menachot, Synhedrin.

SHULCHAN ARUCH—Eben Ha Ezer, Chosen Mishpot, Orach Chayim.

Shaloth v. Tishuboth, Mate Dan, En Yaacob.

The Technical School of the B'nai B'rith was removed from its former location in Pine street, to Touro Hall in January, 1897, the Society having made special provision for its accomodation. A record of this proceeding is afforded by the correspondence relating to it, which is here appended :

GEORGE WIENER

of Directors of the Hebrew Education Society for space in its building in which to pursue the work of the B'nai B'rith Manual Training School and that a committee of three be appointed to confer with a similar committee of your Board of Directors to perfect the necessary arrangements.

The committee appointed by the Governing Committee of the Manual Training School are Brothers H. S. Friedman, Charles Hoffman and Jacob Singer.

Kindly inform me of your action.

Submitting this for your kind consideration, by order of the Governing Committee of the M. T. S.

Very truly yours,
M. K. COHEN, Secretary,
2123 Camac Place.

To this the following reply was forwarded :

SIMON FLEISHER
Board of Officers, 1887-1893

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 15, 1896.

To the Committee of the Manual Training School of the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith :

GENTLEMEN,—Your communication in regard to your school was considered at a stated meeting of the Board of Officers of the Hebrew Education Society, held on Sunday last, the 13th inst., when a resolution was adopted authorizing the Industrial and Hall Committees to grant the use of such rooms in Touro Hall as may be required for your classes.

The committees are desirous of aiding in furthering the work which, up to the present time, has been so ably conducted by you and assure you of their cheerful co-operation and shall be pleased to meet you either this evening, to-morrow evening or Thursday evening to arrange the necessary details, I am,
Most respectfully
yours,

D. SULZBERGER,
Chairman Hall Com.

On February 3, 1897, the Governing Committee of the B'nai B'rith Manual Training School held a meeting in Touro Hall, and directed to the Board of Officers the following communication :

GABRIEL BLUM
Treasurer, 1891—

PHILADELPHIA, February 10, 1897.

David Sulzberger, Secretary Hebrew Education Society :

DEAR SIR :—At the last meeting of the Governing Committee of the B'nai B'rith Manual Training School, held on February 3, 1897, I was requested to say to you that in accordance with the arrangements made between the committee of your Board of Directors and a like number of our Governing Committee, the kind offer you extended to us in granting sufficient room in your building for our Manual Training School has been accepted, and we are now occupying the space allotted to us.

MAYER GANS

The thanks of the Governing Committee of the B'nai B'rith Manual Training School is hereby tendered to the Hebrew Education Society, which, through the Board of Directors, is ever ready to promote the interest of education among Israelites. Your aid and assistance otherwise extended to our cause is also accepted and will be gratefully remembered by us.

Trusting that harmony of action may always exist between us, and that our joint efforts may be crowned with the best results,

I remain very truly yours,

M. K. COHEN,

Secretary Governing Committee, B'nai B'rith M. T. S.

At the meeting of the Board of Officers, held November 14, 1897, a communication was received from Moses A. Dropsie, President of the Board of Trustees of Gratz College, asking for rooms in Touro Hall for the purpose of the College. Three rooms were prepared and the free use of them granted for the classes which were instructed by Mess. Speaker, Dembitz and Husik. The College was opened on January 3, 1898, the classes instructed by Mess. Dembitz and Husik were opened January 6. Instruction in Mr. Speaker's class did not begin until January 25.

DAVID HOFFMAN

In reviewing the fifty years' work of the Society as recorded in the preceding pages, one important feature of its history may well be dwelt upon.

DR. MORRIS JASTROW, JR.
Board of Officers, 1891—1892

While constantly keeping in view the prime object of the Hebrew Education Society's existence, which is sufficiently indicated in its title, the steadfast policy pursued by the organization during the past twenty years of its activity has been that of keeping its work rigorously within the limits imposed by the means available for the purpose. In this period the Society has constantly aimed to widen its scope and to meet the increasing requirements of its work to the fullest possible extent, but always with such conservation of its forces as would give security to its foundation and permanence to its future.

The decline of the Society's influence and efficiency which developed in the third decade of its existence, and which reached its lowest stage about 1878, was definitely brought about by a neglect of these prime considerations, as is clearly manifest from the various reports of its officers, who sought, as it appears from these reports, to make the Society's school to "excel all others." Laudable as was such ambition, it was undoubtedly ill-advised, as is evidenced by the fact that the entire legacy of Judah Touro, amounting to twenty thousand dollars, instead of being set aside as a source of income, was spent upon the current work and its value as a foundation thus completely destroyed. It is not to be said that the fund was wasted, inasmuch as no little good was accomplished by its use, but the policy thus indicated may justly be considered as more than questionable. This policy has since been reversed, and the By-Laws of the Society have been carefully framed to the end that every legacy be made a permanent fund, and that only its income may be currently used.

MRS. MATILDA H. COHEN

With the beginning of the present decade, the Society entered a period of comparative and increasing prosperity. In 1891 new classes of membership were organized, including that of regular members paying five dollars per annum, patrons contributing twenty-five dollars and friends one hundred dollars annually, and in 1894 the fee for life membership was increased from one hundred to two hundred and fifty dollars.

In 1879 the report of the Treasurer showed the whole income from membership dues to be $435.00, and from the Permanent Fund (the $2500 estate of Daniel Gans), $150.00 a total of $585.00.

In 1898 the report of the Treasurer shows an income from the like sources of a total of $5425.82, a ten-fold increase of resources, enabling a naturally corresponding increase of the Society's activity.

During a period of twenty-seven years, namely from 1851 to 1878, the school of the Society was conducted on the plan of a seminary, giving a general education to its pupils. In the latter year it was found necessary to abandon this undertaking, and the work of the Society was then restricted to the single direction of instruction in Hebrew. In 1891, however, the Society found itself enabled to extend its efforts in the direction of industrial education, and several trade schools, as well as an English night school, were then instituted. These schools have since been continued and enlarged, and most excellent results have been accomplished in both directions.

MRS. BERTILA GANS

The industrial schools have attracted a gratifying number of pupils, many of whom have acquired a degree of proficiency in their respective callings sufficient to enable them to thereby earn a living.

Since 1869 the Society has received an annual donation of varying amount from the Charity Ball Fund, and since 1892, a stipend of two hundred dollars per month from the American Baron de Hirsch Fund. These contributions, supplementing the income of the Society from its members, patrons and friends and from its Permanent Fund, have enabled the Society to develop its work to a degree not otherwise possible.

The far-reaching importance of the Society's work can be fully appreciated only by those who have personally visited the various schools while in session, and thus realized that the beneficent work of the Hebrew Education Society accrues to the benefit, not merely of its pupils, but ultimately to the community of which they form a part.

LEOPOLD FURTH

LEGACIES.

In the following list of the Permanent Fund of the Society, it will be found that some of the legacies became operative some time after the death of the testators; that of Mayer Arnold was a contingent bequest, and though he died in 1868, it was not until 1883 that the legacy was paid.

The Sussman legacy was held at Bellefonte for some time, the deceased having willed five hundred dollars for a Hebrew school at that place, but in the event of none being established, the bequest should be paid to the Hebrew Education Society of Philadelphia.

The first payment of interest on this legacy was reported at the meeting of the Board of Officers, held June 6, 1886.

The Guarantee Trust and Safe Deposit Company was custodian of the fund until 1895. At a meeting of the Board of Officers, held on December 8th of that year, it was reported that the legacy of Abraham Sussman had been paid over to the Society by the Guarantee Trust and Safe Deposit Company, pursuant to an order of the Orphan's Court of Centre County at Bellefonte, at a session of the Court held November 25, 1895.

The legacy of $2500 from Daniel Gans was in the hands of his executors, Messrs. Mayer and Aaron Gans, for a period of twenty years. In 1889 Mr. Aaron Gans, the surviving executor, applied to the Orphan's Court to be relieved of the trust, which application was granted: the President became the trustee ex-officio, with the Society itself as the surety.

The legacy of two hundred dollars from Isaac Leeser only became operative six years after his death, at which time a final settlement of the estate was made.

The amounts bequeathed by Solomon Solis ($200), Rosanna Osterman ($1000), Isaac Leeser ($200) and Jacob Bamberger ($250), amounting to sixteen hundred and fifty dollars, had been applied to the general purposes of the Society; however, through the efforts of the Board of Officers, between the years 1889 and 1891, this amount was recovered into the treasury of the Society.

The Touro legacy of twenty thousand dollars could not so be recovered, but the Board of Officers on the erection of the new building in 1891, at the southwest corner of Tenth and Carpenter streets, named it Touro Hall. This edifice, when completed, cost fifty-two thousand dollars. It is a worthy monument of that great philanthropist.

APPENDIX I.

FORMER SCHOOL HOUSE
SEVENTH STREET, BET. CALLOWHILL AND WOOD.

APPENDIX I.

HEBREW SCHOOLS.

SCHOOL NO. 1, SEVENTH AND WOOD STREETS.

In January, 1878, a change was effected in the management of the School, only one teacher in Hebrew, Mr. Hyman Polano, and one teacher in English, Miss Charity S. Cohen, were retained for a time. The English branches were discontinued on June 28th of this year.

Mr. Polano also taught a class at the Foster Home, beginning January 1, 1878; this school was discontinued on January 16, 1879.

On January 1, 1881, Solomon Solis Cohen was appointed to the position of Hebrew teacher in place of Hyman Polano, who had resigned.

In January, 1881, a Fair was given by the Teachers' Association of the Hebrew Sunday-school, for the purpose of raising sufficient funds to repair the school house on Seventh street.

The Treasurer of the Hebrew Education Society, Mr. Simon B. Fleisher, received a check for $2,274.80 from Mr. Jacob Muhr, who acted as Treasurer of the Fair.

The building was renovated at a cost of five thousand dollars over and above the amount received from the Teachers' Association, for which amount a mortgage on the building was taken. One thousand dollars of this had been paid off previous to its sale to Messrs. Roig & Langsdorf.

The building was re-dedicated on November 13, 1881, just twenty-five years after the first dedication, which took place on November 12, 1856. Rev. S. Morais delivered the opening prayer and Rev. Dr. M. Jastrow delivered an address, the services were ended by the reading of the afternoon prayers by the Rev. S. Morais.

On Monday, June 6, 1881, this school was temporarily removed to 872 N. Seventh street.

The building at Seventh and Wood streets, having been altered and improved, was re-opened for school purposes on the 14th of November following.

On the first of June, 1882, this school and the one held at 872 N. Seventh street, were consolidated.

In April, 1887, the Trade School was opened, in which garment making and cutting, cigar making and carpentering were taught.

In February, 1889, this building having been sold, the Hebrew school was removed to 1204 Germantown avenue, where it is now located. On January 1, 1891, Miss Evelyn Bomeisler succeeded Henry S. Morais as teacher. She is the present incumbent.

SCHOOL NO. 2, FIFTH AND CATHARINE STREETS.

On Sunday, March 3, 1878, Hebrew School No. 2 was opened in the Synagogue Building (known as the Holland Schule), Fifth and Catharine streets, with Marcus E. Lam as the instructor.

On December 31st the school was removed to 516 South street, on December 31, 1879 to 417 Pine street, on September 1, 1884 it was removed to Dramatic Hall, Fifth and Gaskill streets; this building has since been altered and is now the Synagogue of the Congregation Emunath Israel Oheb Shalom.

On April 17, 1888, removed to 316 S. Fourth street, on February 2, 1891 to 322 Bainbridge street, and on December 14th of the same year the first session of the Hebrew school was held in Touro Hall, Tenth and Carpenter streets, where it is permanently located.

SCHOOL NO. 3, GIRARD AVENUE AND MARSHALL STREET.

October 12, 1879, School No. 3 was opened at the N. W. cor. Marshall street and Girard avenue, with Cyrus Adler as the teacher.

On January 26, 1880, the school was removed to the N. E. cor. Fourth and Poplar streets. April 26, 1880, Henry S. Morais was chosen as teacher of this school, in place of Cyrus Adler, who took charge of that in Wayne street.

May 1, 1881, the school was removed to 872 N. Seventh street, whence it was subsequently merged with School No. 1 at Seventh and Callowhill streets.

SCHOOL NO. 4, 624 WAYNE STREET.

On December 28, 1879, a school was opened at 624 Wayne street, in the district of Richmond, with Dr. H. Max Gerstenkranz as instructor.

On April 26, 1880, Cyrus Adler was chosen as teacher for the Wayne street school.

On Sunday afternoon, September 16, 1883, the school house at 2656-58 Lark street was dedicated. In this building, in June, 1885, was undertaken the first instruction in various branches of trades by the Society.

Carpentering, cigar making, manufacturing picture-frames and dressmaking were taught.

On the 30th of December, 1883, Cyrus Adler resigned and was succeeded by Moses De Ford.

March 1, 1888, C. D. Spivak became teacher in Lark street school, he was succeeded in February, 1891, by George S. Seldes, who in turn was succeeded on September 1, 1892, by Isaac Husik. The latter resigned in December, 1898, and was succeeded by Hyman Grabosky, who remains in charge at the present time.

SEWING SCHOOL.

The Sewing School at 624 Wayne street was opened in

SCHOOL HOUSE, 2854-56-58 WELKE, STREET. (Lark St.)

October, 1880, by Mrs. A. C. Van Beil, assisted by Mrs. Simeon H. Newhouse (who became its first Superintendent), Miss Simha C. Peixotto, Miss Mawson, Mrs. Joseph Herzog of New York, and D. Sulzberger of the Society.

Miss Rose Kauffman (Mrs. Moses Feustman) succeeded Mrs. Newhouse in December, 1881, and retained the position a short time and was succeeded by Mrs. Eva Coons at the opening of the school, October, 1882, who retained the position until 1888.

The report for the year ending March 3, 1884, was made by Miss Tinie Feustman (Mrs. Edward Goldstein), Acting Superintendent, owing to the absence of Mrs. Coons.

In the fall of 1888 Miss Hennie May (Mrs. Isaac Kahn) succeeded Mrs. Coons, and on the opening of the school, November 3, 1881, became Superintendent. The school having been opened by Mrs. Horace A. Nathans, who visited it each Sunday morning during that term.

Until this time the Sewing School had been conducted entirely by volunteer teachers and superintendents. The teachers in dress making and garment drafting were paid.

In the report for the year ending March 8, 1891, we note the following: "The Sewing School in Lark street is now conducted by two young girls who were former pupils, and who have been taught dress making and cutting in the garment drafting department, which has been in operation since last May (1890)."

It was found impracticable to continue the school in this manner, the children not having the proper respect for their teachers, who were unable to enforce discipline and who could not retain the attendance as did the ladies who formerly were the instructors; in consequence of this it was discontinued.

The following ladies were volunteer teachers during its existence.

SUPERINTENDENTS, ACTING SUPERINTENDENTS AND TEACHERS.

Mrs. Simeon H. Newhouse, Mrs. Eva Coons, Mrs. Horace

A. Nathans, Misses Celia Adler, Rose Kauffman, Tinie Feustman, Hennie May and Celia Hirshler; Misses Eckerson, Annie Jastrow, Minnie Rowe, Josephine Leberman, Leah Abeles, Salvana Shloss, Katinka Mansbach, Bertha Kohn, Ella Frank, Alice Kaufman, Bertha Guggenheimer, Fannie Allen, Florrie Shloss and Cora Hirshler.

GENERAL NIGHT SCHOOL.

March, 1891, a General Night School was opened at 322 Bainbridge street, with Bernard Harris and Amelia J. Allen as the teachers. It increased in size so rapidly that it soon required two additional teachers. This school was removed into the new building at Touro Hall on December 14, 1891, and is there permanently established under guidance of a corps of nine teachers. Besides the elementary branches of English there are here taught the following: To women and girls, dress making and millinery; to men and boys, cigar making, garment cutting, etc., and to both sexes, type-writing and stenography.

The teaching of various other industries and trades such as carpentering, tin working, upholstering, iron work, etc., had at different times been introduced in this school, but were necessarily abandoned by reason of a lack of adequate attendance.

PHILADELPHIA, March 12, 1899.

The Fifty-First Annual Meeting of the Hebrew Education Society was held this morning in Touro Hall, S. W. corner of Tenth and Carpenter streets. Ephraim Lederer, Vice President in the chair and D. Sulzberger acting as Secretary.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The reports of the President and Treasurer were received and read, and ordered to be entered on the minutes.

On motion of Mr. Edward Wolf, seconded by Mr. Louis Gerstley, it was carried that one thousand copies of the Annual Report be printed for distribution, together with the history of the Society.

A communication was received from Messrs. Baker & Dallett, architects, in reference to the alterations and repairs in Touro Hall.

On motion of Mr. Louis E. Levy, seconded by Mr. Samuel M. Hyneman, it was carried that the report be received and filed.

Nominations now being in order, the present incumbents, whose terms expired, were all renominated as follows :

FOR ONE YEAR.

President—Benjamin Wolf.

Vice-President—Ephraim Lederer.

Treasurer—Gabriel Blum.

Secretary—D. Sulzberger.

BOARD OF OFFICERS FOR THREE YEARS.

Andrew Kaas,

Mrs. Eva Coons,

Henry M. Frank,

Maurice Bamberger,

Benjamin W. Fleisher, Jr.

There being but one nominee for each position, on motion it was carried that the Secretary cast the vote of the Society, the nominees were declared unanimously elected.

On motion of Mr. Kaas, seconded by Mr. Levy, it was carried that the communication from the architects, Messrs. Baker & Dallett, in reference to alterations and repairs and the removal of the swimming pool for which twelve additional shower-baths should be erected, should be taken up for consideration.

On motion of Mr. Edward Wolf, seconded by Mr. Gerstley, it was carried that the matter be referred to the Board of Officers with power to act.

On motion of Mr. Louis Gerstley, seconded by Mr. Edward Wolf, it was carried that the Committee on Membership be requested to use all possible efforts to enlarge the list of members, and a request was made that the names of the Committee on Membership be read; they are as follows: Edward Wolf, chairman, Mrs. H. S. Louchheim, Maurice Bamberger, Henry M. Frank, Andrew Kaas, William B. Roskam and Benjamin W. Fleisher, Jr.

The Chairman stated that the same Committee would be continued for the coming year.

On motion adjourned.

D. SULZBERGER,
Secretary.

Fifty-First Annual Report.

To the Members, Patrons, Friends and Contributors of the Hebrew Education Society:

Ladies and Gentlemen.—

I regret that this, my first report as President of your Society, must be submitted in my absence; only the most urgent business requirements could have prevented my attendance at the Annual Meeting, more especially since only a portion of the amount required for the liquidation of the Nine Thousand Dollar mortgage has been subscribed.

The Society's history will be published this year with the regular Annual Report, and will prove a valuable acquisition to the history of the Jews in Philadelphia.

I trust that when the public shall receive this report, the entire subscription for the payment of the mortgage will have been obtained.

HEBREW SCHOOLS.

The examinations of the Hebrew Schools were held as follows:

No. 1, June 3, 1204 Germantown Avenue.

No. 2, June 10, Touro Hall, Tenth and Carpenter streets.

No. 3, June 17, 2856-58 Weikel street.

The room occupied by School No. 1 is wholly inadequate for the successful conduct of the work, it is the largest Hebrew School with the smallest floor space.

I would suggest that after the work in Touro Hall is completed, that arrangements be made for the purchase of two moderate sized houses, adjoining each other, and altered for purposes of your classes, as also for those of the Hebrew Sunday-School Society.

Miss Minnie Mayer donated a Bible which was awarded in School No. 1, as was also the Ulysses H. Roskam prize and five dollar prize by Mrs. Florence K. Liveright.

MOSES H. LICHTEN
Board of Officers, 1892-1893

The Norman and Courtney prizes were divided between Hebrew Schools Nos. 2 and 3.

NIGHT SCHOOL.

The Night School, which is open during the entire year, hardly gets the recognition it deserves, it is taken for granted that the classes are kept up to their standard, pupils come and go and teachers perform their duties satisfactorily. Those who leave the School, having obtained as much as they could receive or acquire, sever their connections entirely and are rarely again heard of; no trace of them is possible, although most of those who were in the Segar and Garment Making and Cutting classes are known to have obtained employment.

Typewriting and Stenography is a recent branch of instruction, hence but little can be said as to its results.

Commencement exercises of the Night School were held Thursday evening, June 30.

There were present of the Board: Benjamin Wolf, President; Ephraim Lederer, Vice-President; Henry M. Frank, Chairman of the Industrial Committee, and D. Sulzberger, Secretary.

Mr. Isaac Husik, instructor in Hebrew in Gratz College, delivered the opening address.

Misses Corinne B. Arnold and Beulah Brylawski and

MORTON M. NEWBURGER

Ephraim Lederer, Esq., acted as judges to award the Isidore Coons prize for the best recitation, which was awarded to Samuel Lazowick, Solomon Aaronchik and John Posner, the Committee deciding that there was sufficient merit in each of the recitations to entitle the above named to a portion of the prize.

The Gabriel Blum Prize (The Jewish Year), was awarded to Barnett Ginvert for general progress.

Mr. Wolf presented the diplomas to the seventeen graduates, and the prizes to the pupils of the various classes.

Mr. Ephraim Lederer delivered the closing address to the graduates.

The exercises were concluded with the Star Spangled Banner being sung by the audience, Miss Emma Brylawski kindly performed the piano accompaniment.

From March 17 to June 16, Mr. Lederer delivered a course of ten lectures on the Constitution of the United States.

The nativity of the 1074 pupils admitted was as follows:

SEWING SCHOOL.

On July 5, 1898, a sewing school was opened in Touro Hall under the joint charge of the Jewish Women's Council and the Young Women's Union, and discontinued September 1.

On January 8, 1899, the following communication was received from Mrs. Isaac Gimbel:

1511 N. 16th St.,
PHILADELPHIA, January 7, 1899.

To the Board of Officers of the Hebrew Education Society:

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—Finding there is a need of another school in the southern section of the city, and being desirous of opening such a school, but not having sufficient means to pay a superintendent, we, the Council of Jewish Women, would be willing to undertake the entire control of the school if you could supply the funds for paying one teacher. The one which was carried on during the summer in your Hall under the auspices of the Council did so much good work, that we would greatly regret that the lack of sufficient means would compel us to discontinue so good a work. Trusting the proposition will meet with your approval,

MORRIS SICKLES

I am yours, etc.,

RACHEL F. GIMBEL.

Chairman of Sewing School Committee, Council of Jewish Women.

The Board took favorable action and the school opened, the attendance averaging 70 daily, it became necessary to employ an assistant.

The Dress-making Class in which is taught drafting, cutting and fitting, and sewing by hand and machine, and the Millinery Class in which instruction is given in making frames, covering hats with straw, silk, velvet and other material, are all that could be desired; and the ladies of the Board, in whose charge these branches are, are enthusiastic in their praise of the instructors and their methods, but the attendance in these classes is not as large as it should be.

FREE SYNAGOGUE.

Religious services on Rosh-ha-Shanah and Kippur has become an established fact, this year being under the management of the instructors of the Night School aided by some of the pupils of the School; the thanks of the Society are due to Messrs. Bernard Harris, Samuel Israeli George Goward and L. Schwerin for their successful efforts to have the services properly conducted, though it can be positively stated that none more orderly or impressive was held in the city.

requisite amount each year, their names will be found in the Treasurer's Report.

BATHS.

The Board after mature deliberation has decided to recommend the removal of the swimming-pool, owing to the fact that the water cannot change fast enough for the immense number of bathers using the pool during the summer months: from one hundred and fifty to two hundred in one hour, is too great a number to bathe in water which cannot possibly change entire in less than three hours. Eleven shower baths are now in operation, and the Board of Officers suggest that twelve more be built as soon as means are at hand for the purpose, plans having already been prepared by the architects.

HENRY M. FRANK
Board of Officers, 1893—

On the fifteenth of June, 1898, the swimming pool was opened, it was visited by 1500 bathers in June, 8800 bathers in July, and in August by 9300.

HEBREW SUNDAY SCHOOL.

The Hebrew Sunday School Society occupies the building for its School on Sunday morning and afternoon: in the morning for its Religious School and in the afternoon by its Sewing School; while on this subject I would call the attention of the public to the work done by this Society.

It has now in operation the Northern School, Third and German-town avenue, 865 pupils; the Southern School at Touro Hall, Tenth and Carpenter streets, with 1076 pupils;

South-Eastern School at Washington Hall, Fourth and South streets, with 675 pupils, and the School at Columbia Hall, Eight and South streets, with 487 pupils, making a total of 3103 pupils.

SIDNEY TRIESTE

B'NAI B'RITH MANUAL TRAINING SCHOOL.

The technical school under the auspices of the Independent Order B'nai B'rith is doing good work, the pupils are being taught mechanical drawing, joining, carpentering, etc.; the instructors, Messrs. Hetzell and Alker, are thoroughly conversant with the latest methods adopted in the Public Manual Training Schools; Mr. Alker being instructor in joinery in the Central Manual Training School of this city.

JOSEPH ROSENBAUM

GRATZ COLLEGE.

The classes of the Gratz College still hold their sessions in Touro Hall, where three rooms are set apart for their uses.

BARON DE HIRSCH COMMITTEE.

The Baron De Hirsch Committee still occupies the office room of which it has been in possession for several years past.

The office is open each morning and afternoon when Mr. George Goward, the superintendent, attends to the multifarious duties of his office, part of which, and not the least important, is the Employment Bureau.

ENTERTAINMENTS—TOURO HALL.

The following entertainments were held in Touro Hall:

April 27, 1898—Young Women's Branch of the Young Men's Hebrew Association.

July 2, 1898—Hebrew Sunday School, Punch and Judy Exhibition.

November 10, 1898—Touro Circle, composed of former pupils of the Hebrew Education Society's Night School.

December 11, 1898—Chanukah Entertainment of Hebrew Sunday School Society.

December 14, 1898—Manual Training School, B'nai B'rith.

DAVID W. AMRAM,
Board of Officers 1895—

Resolutions in regard to the deaths of Philip Lewin and Joseph J. Snellenburg were adopted at the meetings of the Board of Officers held May 8, and November 13, 1898, respectively, and were as follows :

“ In common with all other charitable organizations of this city, the Hebrew Education Society of Philadelphia has suffered a grievous loss through the sudden demise of who was for a long time an earnest co-laborer in the work of the Society, and for a number of years an active member of its Board of Officers.

In token of the high respect and esteem for the deceased by his surviving associates on the Board, it is ordered that the present minute be inscribed on the records of the Society.”

HEBREW EDUCATION SOCIETY OF
PHILADELPHIA.

The Board of Officers of this Society has learned with deep regret of the death of

JOSEPH J. SNELLENBURG.

He was for a number of years an active member of this Board, and aided materially in the educational work of the Society.

No call on him for assistance ever remained unanswered.

The Board of Officers tenders to the family its sincere sympathy in their bereavement.

LIBRARY.

The Leeser Library has been used during the last year, but not to the extent that such a valuable collection would warrant. Every facility will be afforded to those who desire the use of the books, but circumstances have compelled the adoption of a rule which necessitates their use for reference only and in the building.

The Circulating Library has been largely patronized by the pupils of the Night School during the last few months. A number of books have been added to it, mainly juvenile.

The demand for books in Jargon having considerably increased, a number of them were recently purchased.

LIGHTING.

Before closing this report, I desire to mention that a question of importance has been considered by your Board of Officers, that of "Light."

The enormous sum of five hundred and forty-eight dollars and thirty cents was paid for gas (of this amount the fixtures and mantles cost seven dollars and thirty cents), and the bill for the present quarter, not included in this account, amounting to one hundred and sixty dollars.

Estimates have been obtained for installing an electric plant which would probably be no more expensive than the gas supply, and have the advantage of avoiding the intense heat thrown out by the gas lights during the summer months; the most rigid economy is practiced at all times, and your Board has hesitated to incur the expense of installation.

It will be noted by the report of the Treasurer that the list of members paying five dollars per annum has fallen off by twelve less paying this year, and the list of patrons paying twenty-five dollars by thirteen, causing a reduction from that source amounting to three hundred and eighty-five dollars; strenuous efforts should be made by every member of the Society, more especially by those composing the Board of Officers, to increase the membership.

Contributions for educational purposes is the highest and noblest kind of charity, for it tends to make our people better men and women and better citizens, instilling in them a love of race and love of country.

Respectfully submitted,

BENJAMIN WOLF,
President.

RESOLUTION

Adopted at the meeting of the Board of Officers on the occasion of the death of the Baroness Clara de Hirsch-Gereuth:

“In the death of the Baroness Clara de Hirsch-Gereuth, the Hebrew Education Society of Philadelphia, in common with the Jewish people throughout the world, bows in devout resignation to the Divine will.

“The broad philanthropy and the unstinted charity of the Baroness de Hirsch-Gereuth, attained a grandeur paralleled only by that of her equally lamented husband and affords an example of devotion to a high ideal which remains as a lustrous and imperishable memorial of her beneficent life and as her most valuable heritage to the world which she blessed with her presence.”
